CALLS $60,000 COUNTY NOTE ISSUE ILLEGAL

State Examiner Hits Use of Bond Retirement Money For Relief, T. B. Bills.

FUND TRANSFERS ORDERED

Report Returns Findings of $744 In Interest on Notes Against Officials, Banks.

County commissioners and Auditor Norman L. Wolfe had been ordered today to make county fund transfers totaling $64,215 as the result of findings returned against the county by State Examiner Robert H. Wead.

The findings, which were revealed in a report filed with the state auditor, are based on two illegal transfers of county funds in the past 15 months and the unauthorized use of $60,000 in bond retirement money to pay loans for relief and T. B. hospital bills.

Findings for $744 in interest on the $60,000 in notes were returned against the commissioners, auditor, three Mansfield banks and one in Shelby because the notes were illegal, the examiner said

Purchased by Banks.

The notes (four for $15,000 each) were purchased by the banks in November, 1938, and paid off on April 1 last year from surplus bond retirement funds.

Loans were obtained from the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank, the Richland Trust company, and the Citizens National bank of Mansfield and the First National bank, Shelby. They were cited in the findings.

The other transfer orders involve the illegal shifting of $2,000 from the dog and kennel fund to the general fund to meet operating expenses in January, 1938, and February, 1939, and the unauthorized transfer of $2,215 from the bond retirement fund to the auto license and gas tax fund in June, 1938.

The commissioners and auditor were instructed by the state auditor to return the amounts to the founds from which they were taken. The auditor said the transfers will be made as soon as the money is available from tax collections next spring.

Tranfer of the $64,215 in county funds will, in effect, be taking the money out of one pocket and placing it in another since the

SKI FIGHTERS CLOSING IN ON INVADING LINES

Mass Attack Against Forts of Mantsin In Southeast Foiled by Finland.

(By Associated Press)

HELSINKI — White-clad Finnish ski fighters were reported today to have trapped the remnants of four Soviet divisions in the sub-zero wilderness north of Lake Ladoga.

Unofficial Finnish reports indicated two Soviet divisions might be beyond help while a crisis was expected momentarily for the other two, tormented by the guerrilla tactics of Finland's ski patrols.

Benefited by the coldest winter in 60 years, the Finnish forces have launched attack after attack at Kollaanjoki and at Aittojoki, near the Russia border north of the lake.

The Finns said the Russian troops at Aittojoki were the remnants of forces scattered in battles at Agajarvi and Tolvajarvi. Another Soviet division was reported battering vainly at the Finnish lines at Kollaanjoki in attempts to relieve comrades in two other divisions caught too far from their base in the region of Kitela, on the north shore of Lake Ladoga.

The Finns said lack of reports of fighting at Kitela might mean these stranded units already were beyond help.

The Russians were reported repulsed in a mass attack against the island forts of Mantsin, just off the shore of the lake in the southeast corner of Finland, where the Finns said the enemy left "more than 100 dead before our positions."

Report Thousands of Russians Cut Off.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark—(U.P.)—Two Russian enforcement divisions were reported to be in difficult position today north of Lake Ladoga on the Finnish southern front.

Press dispatches reported that the two divisions, which might number anywhere from 10,000 to 18,000 men each, had lost contact with each other after trying vainly for days to get through to reinforce the Russians who had been attacking the Finns northeast of the lake for seven days.

Further, the Russian force attacking the Finns was now report-

Four Democrats who have announced as candidates or have been mentioned as running, had not filed at noon. Train to Make a Living, Live Creative Lives, Aim for Progress, Speaker Tells Record Mid-Year Class.

A challenge to live rich, complete and creative lives, was given 127 members of the January graduating class of Senior high school, by Dr. B. L. Stradley, dean of the liberal arts college, Ohio State university, at the 90th commencement exercises in the high school auditorium last night.

A capacity audience of parents, friends, faculty members and members of the board of education, heard Dr Stradley address the class on "Durable Satisfactions," in which he pointed out three things for which young people must train. They are, he said: 1—to make a living, 2—to live, and 3—to mold a world

"You must make a decision to lead to the right activity of life," Dr. Stradley said "Train to make a living. It is more important to choose a work to be done, as there is so much to be done in this world today. Choose a work you want to do, like to do and have the aptitude to do.

"Life in general is made up largely of second and third choices," he added. "After you have decided on the course, prepare to do a good job. We are

In June, 1928, upon the death of Senator Frank R. Goodin, Thomas was appointed to the senate. In November of the same year he was elected to finish Goodin's term but was defeated by James P. Pope, a Democrat, in 1932.

Borah died at Washington, Jan 19 after serving 33 years as senator from Idaho.

Thomas said he would "pledge" himself to a determination oft expressed by Borah "to keep our nation out of war"

ILLINOIS GIRL SHOOTS LOVER

Sweetheart Dies In Her Arms After Quarrel; Claims Victim Threatened Family.

(By International News Service)

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.—A comely 22-year-old girl was jailed today after confessing the shotgun-slaying of her sweetheart, who died in her arms.

The girl, Eloise Sylvester of Normal, summoned police last night and told them she shot and killed Ralph Daugherty, 23, after he brandished a knife during a violent argument involving her and her family in the Sylvester home.

"I told him to stop," the girl sobbed, "but he just gave me a wild look. Then I fired. He fell. I dropped the weapon and ran to him.

"He held out his arms to me and I put my arms around him he gasped and I laid him down."

The girl said Daugherty came to the Sylvester home and got into a quarrel with the family. She said he had been drinking.

"He started after my dad, but dad yelled for Fred, my brother," she said. "My brother heard the call and rushed in.

"Ralph reached in his pocket for a weapon and I thought it was a gun. When he started swinging something that looked like a dagger, I screamed to him to stop. He came on so I ran and got the gun."

Daugherty had been arrested frequently for disorderly conduct, drunkenness and larceny.

The girl was arrested and ordered held pending an inquest set for Monday.

Mother, 2 Children, Sister Die As Flames Level Home.

MACOMB, Ill.—(U.P.)—A 21-year-old mother, her two small children and her young sister were burned to death today when the small frame house in which they were sleeping caught fire and burned to the ground.

The charred bodies of Olive Wishon and her year-and-a half-old daughter were found beside a bed in which her other child, a nine-months old boy, and her six-year-old sister, Janice Wishon, were burned almost beyond recognition.

City policeman Louis Schnarr said the mother apparently was carrying her daughter in her arms while attempting to reach the bed in an effort to rescue the other two children when she was overcome by smoke and flames.

Predicts Gradual Rise In Mercury to End Cold Wave

Gradual relief from the prolonged cold wave starting Sunday was forecast today by the weatherman, but he made the prediction with his tongue in his cheek.

Abnormal cold still gripped most of the nation, but it was moderating in the middlewest and the forecast held hope for a gradual temperature rise Sunday and Monday.

Light snow and subnormal readings will continue today, but it will be generally fair and slightly warmer Sunday, the forecast said, and warmer Monday.

Mansfield and the rest of Ohio had warmer weather today with five degrees above zero the lowest reported here this morning. About one inch of snow fell during the night.

Residents of the Ohio river valley were cheered by the weatherman's forecast of a gradual break in the cold wave With ice jammed in the Ohio river for 230 miles—almost the entire distance across Ohio and Indiana—a sudden change to warmer weather and rain would bring a major flood, engineers said.

In the south, a record of nine below zero was recorded in Birmingham Ala Nearly all of Tennessee and the north portions of Mississippi Alabama and Georgia recorded sub-zero temperatures.

Predict Mine Union Will Back Wheeler

Politicos Credit Him With Winning Campaign Support.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Political observers today generally credited Sen. Burton K Wheeler, Montana Democrat, with having the 600,000 members of the United Mine Workers of America back of him for the presidential nomination.

Wheeler has not announced his candidacy and his decision is understood to depend on whether President Roosevelt decides to forego a third-term bid.

John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W. and the Congress of Industrial organizations, withheld the formal nod when Wheeler spoke to the U. M. W. convention yesterday, but the 2,400 delegates cheered Wheeler until the Columbus auditorium echoed.

In a setting reminiscent of a political convention, Miners' bands and officials led Wheeler to the

City of Flint Arrives, Sailors Celebrate With 112 Days' Pay

(By United Press)

BALTIMORE, Md — The doughty little freighter City of Flint dropped anchor today—back home after a 113-day adventure-crammed voyage.

The 4,963 ton cargo boat pushed its way through the ice of Chesapeake bay yesterday afternoon and anchored near the channel entrance to Baltimore harbor for the night.

The Flint was harassed until the last with difficulties She reached American waters early yesterday, took aboard Capt. C. S. Drennan, veteran harbor pilot, and then battled ice all day.

Channel buoys in Baltimore harbor had been removed to prevent damage from the crushing ice and Drennan elected to wait for daylight before piloting her into the harbor for examination by public health and customs officials. She will not dock until Monday morning because her dock is not available until then. But her skipper, Capt. Joseph A. Gainard, will give his crew liberty today.

Mrs. Rose Gainard, a school teacher and the skipper's wife, arrives this morning from their home in Melrose, Mass., to greet him.

Relatives of others of the crew waited at the dock.

Local citizens planned to fete the officers and men in celebration of the successful conclusion of their voyage. The sailors were eager to get ashore. They had been paid—112 days pay is a sailor's fortune—yesterday by representatives of the United States lines, the Flint's operators who boarded her as she steamed up Chesapeake bay.

U. S. Gives Japan Hint on How to Obtain a New Treaty

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Respect for American rights is the price which Japan must pay, officials here say, if she wants a new treaty guaranteeing her trade against discriminatory treatment by the United States

The Japanese-American commercial treaty of 1911, which pledged both countries not to discriminate against trade of the other, expired at midnight last night.

Expiration of the pact leaves President Roosevelt free to raise duties on Japanese imports if he finds that Japan is discriminating against the United States, to impose a complete embargo on Japanese imports if the discrimination then continues, and to impose special harbor charges or tonnage rates on Japanese vessels

United States officials are inclined, however, to "sit tight" for the time being and let Japan make the first move.

Although the treaty's expiration brought no comment from them, they had said previously that Japan could have what she wanted if she gave the United States what it wanted—complete respect for American rights.

TIENTSIN China—(U.P.)—Japanese army authorities suddenly tightened their blockade of the British and French concessions today Market booths in the concessions were emptied of food quickly by anxious householders and prices more than doubled.

MAJOR ISSUES TRAVEL OVER NARROW ROUTE

Federal Reserve Figures Show Improvement In Sales, Encourages Market.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks traveled over a narrow route in today's early market dealings.

Recovery proponents were encouraged by the federal reserve survey disclosing the country's department store sales, despite extraordinary weather conditions in many sections, were maintaining improvement over 1939.

For the nation, the year-to-year increase in the week ended Jan. 20, amounted to 4 per cent, duplicating the expansion registered in the preceding week.

Noted also was the estimate of the National Lumber Manufacturers association that lumber output in the United States last week declined 3 per cent while new orders were up as much and shipments were 4-10 of 1 per cent heavier than in the week before. Compared with the same 1939 week production was up 6 per cent, new business 11 per cent larger and shipments 2 per cent less.

DESCRIBES HOW BORAH TRIED TO SWAY PARTIES

Writer Discloses Senator's 'Real Aims' In Presidential Year of 1936.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Although an announced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination in 1936, the late Senator Borah actually had other objectives in actively seeking delegates. The following article, the seventh in a series by William K. Hutchinson, discloses Borah's real aims in that campaign—International News Service.)

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

WASHINGTON—William Edgar Borah ran for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936 without desire to gain the White House but solely to force both the Republican and Democratic parties to declare themselves against entangling alliances abroad and monopolies at home.

This, Borah disclosed to me, before the campaign started. And he won.

Before and during the campaign, friends of Governor Alf M. Landon made every effort possible to get Borah to support the GOP nominee but the "lion of Idaho" refused. On various occasions—even before Landon was nominated—Borah predicted his defeat.

In prophetic words, he told me in late June:

"Landon will be the worst defeated candidate who ever ran for the presidency."

Early in the pre-convention campaigns—when he personally entered the Republican presidential primaries in Illinois and Ohio—Borah sought to obtain from Landon a public declaration denouncing monopolies in general and by name in particular. Landon never did this to Borah's satisfaction.

In foreign affairs, Landon did take a stand approved by Borah.

One day in May, more than a month before the convention, I asked Borah how Landon could be elected, if nominated. He replied:

No Compromise.

"Governor Landon must take a position that leaves him no ground for compromise between himself and those interests. He must denounce the monopolistic powers, like the Mellons, the duPonts and the Standard Oil companies. And he must do that before the convention because so far as I am concerned, it will be too late after the convention.

"This is a matter of life and death politically not only for me but for him too.

"I am his friend when I tell him that. It's a damn sight more to his interest politically than it is to mine, because I am not going to be nominated.

"He must realize he has no show of being elected president if the public believes he has been nominated by the monopolistic powers. That decree has been fixed by the American people already."

I observed that mutual friends insisted Landon did agree with his theories against monopolies.

"That's no good," he continued. "Now Hoover made me two promises in person. One had to do with the farm problem, the other with international policies. As soon as he was elected, he sent for Elihu Root to make up his international policy and broke his solemn promise to me not to ask American entry into the world court.

"After that, any man who wants to talk to me to promise me something must talk to the public so they'll all hear him make the promise."

"My real reason in going to Cleveland is to get both parties on record against entangling alliances and monopolies. If the Republicans take my planks, the Democrats will adopt similar ones."

He won at Cleveland and proved a prophet about the Democrats. His own planks denounced entangling alliances and called monopolies "indefensible and intolerable." The Democrats later promised to "guard against being drawn, by political commitments, international banking or private trading, into any war" and pledged "vigorously and fearlessly" to enforce anti-trust laws.

Borah was very well satisfied with his campaign for the presidency.

FINNS PERIL 4 RED DIVISIONS

Remnants of Battered Lines Being Cut Off by Daring Finnish Ski Fighters.

ed to be in bad position, with all its supply routes at the mercy of Finnish guns along the lake shores.

It had been reported that a dwindling of Russian bombing plane attacks on Finnish towns was due to a call for planes to drop supplies to this force.

The Finns themselves had made no claim to a victory. Their communiques still told to heavy Russian attacks, though it had been understood that these attacks were diminishing in force.

A Stockholm dispatch said the government had named a special committee to make arrangements for evacuation of cities in event of an emergency. The committee will survey also the possibilities of additional accommodations for refugees from Finland.

The newspaper Berlingske Tidende in a dispatch from Stockholm said that a great victory seemed to be in prospect for the Finns northeast of Lake Lagoda and that an authoritative announcement might be expected that the Russians had suffered a disaster.

It was said that the Russians, in their attacks on that front, had trouble getting up food because the snow was more than six feet deep.

Finns were said to have reported that Russian soldiers seemed willing to fraternize with Finns in the front lines and that a large number of Russians crossed no man's land as deserters.

The newspaper reported, from the Karelian isthmus, that Finnish patrol operating behind the Russian lines took an officer prisoner. Then Russians began to encircle the patrol. The patrol ran, it was said, and the Russian officer, without being told, ran too and reached the Finnish lines 100 yards ahead of the patrol. He was quoted as saying that he feared he would be shot by Russian soldiers if he returned.

HOLDS JAPAN'S WAR STRENGTH STARTS WANING

Writer Says China's Rebuilt Forces Might Eventually Result In Victory.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: China's determination to "keep the war going" against Japan may eventually result in victory for the forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. This is the conclusion of James R. Young, far eastern manager of International News Service, reached after a 9,000 mile tour of China and set forth in the following article, last in a series of six, cabled to New York from Hongkong prior to his recent arrest in Tokyo.)

By JAMES R. YOUNG

Japan's vital war strength is waning.

China's rebuilt forces and reorganized behind-the-lines campaign, are improving.

Driven from the coast ports, suffering the loss of all great cities, China's once admittedly wavering and sinking war spirit has been revived.

Contradicting all Japanese news reports, the Chinese are not about to capitulate or retreat. No longer are there triumphal Japanese victories and entries into large cities nor public celebrations over the fall of some important point.

The campaign, now in its third winter, has developed in Chinese hearts and minds the deepest possible hatred of the Japanese army, an emotion which will not wear off during this generation. The long memories and the power of hate of the Chinese will hold Japan at bay indefinitely.

Japan is not going to be the benefactor or conqueror she claims and early believed herself to be. China is fighting her own blockade against Japanese goods. By propaganda, education and the spiritual mobilization campaign, the Chinese are uniting every person who can hear, read or think in the area not occupied and in much of the occupied zones.

Japan is unable to subjugate China's manpower or economic wealth. She has driven the best Chinese into West China or the international concessions. She has only the poorest of the lot.

Foreign military observers believe Japan is using 60 per cent of her manpower to control and mop up unruly regions of supposedly occupied China. Her own puppet armies frequently turn and attack Japan with their own equipment.

Early in the campaign, the Japanese destroyed and stripped factories, offices and homes. The ruination was nearly complete. Now they are striving under a changed policy to salvage the ruins and to make the Chinese cooperate.

I have interviewed half a hundred leading Chinese business men. Not one will co-operate with Japan in occupied or unoccupied areas. They consider the prime policy of Japan is to subjugate China and China's commerce.

Japan lacks leaders in China.

Japan cannot go on building outposts; pill boxes, sandbag defenses and villages and expect to benefit economically. The Chinese policy is not to attack and try to retake a large city but to remain at a good distance and wear down the enemy trying to commercialize the outside regions adjacent to occupied zones or towns.

Japan's charge that the regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has been reduced to the status of a mere provincial administration is untrue and ridiculous.

The Japanese, unfortunately for her leaders who must some day reckon with the collapse of her venture, have no idea of the spirit behind the Chinese reorganization. The Generalissimo's is certainly no provincial government. Japan cannot deliver the decisive blow so often heralded in her recent statements and changes of military staff in China.

Fascist Leader Attacks Roosevelt, U. S. Protestants

SELECTION OF VATICAN ENVOY HIT BY EDITOR

Declares President Among Those to Blame For New European War.

(By United Press)

ROME—Regime Fascista, newspaper owned by Roberto Farinacci, former secretary general of the Fascist party, attacked President Roosevelt, American Protestants, American Jews and America in general in an editorial today.

President Roosevelt was accused of being one of the statesmen responsible for the European war.

Denouncing the president's choice of Myron C. Taylor, former head of the United States Steel corporation, as his personal representative at the vatican, the newspaper said Mr. Roosevelt's choice of a Quaker representative in a nation which had 20,000,000 Catholics showed a lack of desire on the president's part for his "greatly hearalded" peace aims.

The ediorial said the president was of Jewish decent and was surrounded by Jewish advisors.

"Roosevelt, who is surrounded by a group of Jewish counselors, is as responsible for the Jewish war declared against Germany as are the Jewish governments of London and Paris," it continued.

"Protestant-Jewish America, which speaks by means of Roosevelt, which has constantly branded Fascism 'the world's poison,' can not sincerely desire that world peace should come from Rome by means of the two great forces—Fascism and Catholicism—which are vigilant over western civilization from the eternal city.

Flays 'Idolatry, Riches.'

"In countries such as America, where idolatry, riches and superstition, hygiene and comfort reign, the idealistic sense of the christian religion has evaporated in favor of a Protestant sense of philanthropy, which is often a bastard philanthrophy.

"We can but ask what his Jewish advisers who surround Roosevelt have done up to now for peace. They have only furnished to Moscow Jews, American bombing planes with which to bomb heroic Finns."

It was announced without comment that Vincenzo Zangara, former vice secretary of the Fascist party had been suspended from the party as "unworthy." Zangara was replaced during the recent cabinet shake-up.

Tommies Told How to Talk if and When Nazis Fall

LONDON — (U.P.) — A soldier's "English-German phrase book" was published unofficially today to enable the British tommy to talk to the populace in event the allies break through the Siegfried wall into Germany.

"Sorry to disturb you—fear nothing," is one of its first phrases. How to reassure the startled Germans of a captured village: "Our men do not loot. We pay for what we get. You are very obliging. Many thanks."

Considerable attention is paid to social amenities between the soldiers and their prespective German hostesses. The soldiers are to say to each other, presumably in the hostesses' hearing:

"We have a nice hostess. She cooks well. Her soup is excellent."

To the hostess direct, the tommy will say: "You look very young."

Presumably as a means of spreading subtle propaganda among the strictly rationed Germans, the tommy is to ask for "a piece of scented soap" or "little sweet cakes." It was assumed that then, after hearing the exclamations of surprise, he would produce the soap and the little sweet cakes and make a big hit.

NOTARY ENTERS INNOCENT PLEA

Denies Violating Court Order. Case Continued Till Feb. 15.

Brought before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston on a citation for contempt of court, W. O. Burkholder, a Mansfield notary public pleaded innocent yesterday afternoon and his case was continued to Feb. 15.

Burkholder was accused by a committee of the Richland Bar association of drawing up a land deed in violation of a court order which held that the practice was the duty of an attorney.

Burkholder was among 10 county notaries who were enjoined from illegal law practice last year in an order by Judge Huston.

Jail 2nd Suspect In Clevelander's Murder

Up and Down THE STREET

Mrs. Paul H. Schultz, 129 Dawson avenue, has received an autographed photo from a former pupil who is making good. Mrs. Schultz, formerly Miss Frances Hughes, in an alumna of Ohio Wesleyan and a former Mansfield school teacher. She recently sent a request to Fred Waring to repeat the "Ohio Wesleyan" song which he wrote and told him that she taught Jane Wilson, Mansfield girl who is now the "Waring Band glamor girl," in the fourth grade at Carpenter school. The song was repeated and the entire Waring outfit sent greetings to Mrs. Schultz in the form of an autographed copy of the song, bearing the names of all the Waring stars. There also was an attractive photograph of Jane.

A Mansfield junior high school pupil who will move into the new Johnny Appleseed building next week was a bit apprehensive after a peek at the lockers in the new building. He remarked to his teacher that they were going to be pretty small. Explaining that they were the usual size, she asked him why he thought they were small. "Because I'm going to have an awful time dressing in one of them," he replied soberly.

One of the most unusual occurrances of the current Mansfield bowling season took place last night when the two highest scores turned in at the Meder alleys were identical, not only in the total but in the game scores as well. The bowlers were Henry Michaels and Frank Campbell of the Ohio Brass company league. They both started out with games of 202, continued with identical scores of 233 and finished with 172's for totals of 607. They bowled on different teams and on different alleys.

One thing a lot of fathers would like to do, but never have the privilege of doing, is to present their son or daughter with diplomas at high school graduation. Two Mansfield fathers had that opportunity last night during Senior high school commencement exercises. They are W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, and W. C. Mead, member of the school, both of whom had daughters graduating. Miller presented his daughter Alice Jane, with her diploma, and Mead, who presented the diplomas to the entire class of 127, also presented his daughter, Mary Alice Mead, with hers.

TWO FIRE CALLS

No Damage Done, Firemen Say In Reports.

City firemen responded to two alarms last night and early this morning, neither of which resulted in any damage they reported today.

Two companies were called to the home of Mrs. Marie Lay, 182 West Fifth street, at 12:40 a. m. today when a chimney in the house caught fire.

At 10 p. m. yesterday companies Nos. 1 and 2 were called to the Jordan Grocery, 148 North Main street, when an oil stove filled the place with smoke. There was no fire.

A fire at the Reese Optical company on the fifth floor of the Richland Trust building early yesterday was incorrectly reported by the fire department as having occurred at the King Optical company, which is on the sixth floor of the building.

SPURNS PEACE

African Assembly Turns Down Plea of Former Premier.

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa—(U.P.)—The house of assembly today voted down, 81 to 59, a resolution offered by former Prime Minister General J. B. M. Hertzog calling for restoration of peace between Germany and the Union of South Africa.

The vote of the house, lower chamber of the union parliament, showed there had been little weakening of the large minority which went on record last Sept. 5 opposing a declaration of war.

PHILIPPINE SHIP SINKS AT SEA

Liner President Quezon Goes To Bottom After Smashing Against Shoals.

(By International News Service)

MANILA, P. I.—In a severe blow to the Philippine commonwealth's small merchant marine, the liner President Quezon sank stern first today off the southern tip of Japan.

The 8,431-ton steamer, making her first transpacific crossing under the Filipino flag, plunged to the bottom at 11:30 this morning, eight hours after she had smashed aground on treacherous shoals of Tanegashima island.

Passengers and crew members were removed from the sinking vessel by the Japanese steamer Okishima Maru, aided by two other rescue ships which had sped to the scene through a raging storm.

Among the President Quezon's 12 passengers were Cyrus A. Anderson, San Francisco agency president, and Juan Cojuangco, co-owner of the C. & J. line, operators of the ship. Mrs. Cojuangco and two friends were believed to have accompanied her husband on the voyage.

In addition to Filipino firemen and seamen, crew members aboard included Assistant Engineer Bistis of San Francisco.

The President Quezon was formerly the Dollar and American mail liner President Madison. She was transferred to Philippine registry Oct. 24, 1939.

OHIO CONGRESSMEN CHART NEW BATTLE ON PENSION REFUNDER

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Ohio congressmen explored new avenues today in their year-long fight for settlement of the state's $1,300,000 claim for back payments of federal old age assistance funds.

Adjustment was blocked earlier this week as the house refused to override President Roosevelt's veto of legislation authorizing payment.

Rep. Secrest (D-Ohio) said it was "very likely" that the bill would be introduced in a form designed to achieve the same purpose but meeting objections of President Roosevelt and Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the social security board.

Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) said he was suggesting a general amendment to the social security act intended not only to adjust the Ohio claim but to give the board wider latitude in settling future disputes.

Rep. Jenkins (R-Ohio), who introduced the vetoed bill, predicted ultimate adjustment, but a number of Ohioans declared they doubted a bill acceptable to President Roosevelt and Altmeyer could be drafted.

Meanwhile, the president spiked rumors that he might order the board to pay some money to Ohio. He said such action would be inconsistent with his veto.

In blocking the measure, the president declared states must comply completely with federal laws. The money, for October, 1938, was withheld on the ground Former Gov. Martin L. Davey used the state pension system for political purposes.

The Jenkins bill, approved by Paul V. McNutt, security administration, would have directed the board to compute an amount for payment and certify it for disbursement by the treasury.

FOUND DEAD

Nicholas Reiter, 64, Victim of Heart Attack.

Nicholas Reiter, 64, of 24 Hoffer street, was found dead at his home early yesterday evening. Death was due to a heart attack, Coroner Hugh Winbigler said.

The body was found on the stairway leading to the basement by police, who were called by neighbors when they noticed his absence. The coroner said that Mr. Reiter, who resided alone, had been dead about 24 hours.

PHILADELPHIA POLICE ARREST PAIR AT HOTEL

Say New Yorker Also Wanted For Other Holdups; Illegal Parking Leads to Arrest.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia police today nabbed an alleged New York bandit wanted in connection with the slaying of a Cleveland fur shop proprietor as the suspect and his chauffeur were sleeping in a North Philadelphia hotel.

Detective Sergeant Fred McGoldrick identified the suspect as Anthony Girasole, 30, of Brooklyn, and the other man as Jack Reznik, of Detroit. Girasole also was wanted for questioning about three holdups in New York City involving $3,000.

The two men were arrested by an ironic quirk of fate when a passing patrolman noticed their automobile parked outside the hotel lacked parking lights. As the patrolman stopped to investigate, he was joined by motorcycle Patrolmen Frank Ferro and Peter Massa.

Noting the Michigan license plates on the car, Ferro investigated and found the numbers corresponded to those described on a nationwide police flier. Sending the patrolman to the back of the building, Ferro and Massa went up to the suspect's room with the hotel clerk.

His eyes heavy with sleep, Girasole came to the door and was confronted by the policemen's drawn revolvers.

"It's a good thing you have those guns, or I'd have shot it out," Girasole snarled after submitting to arrest. He and Reznik were taken to central police quarters at city hall where they were questioned by Sergeant McGoldrick. The chauffeur apparently was not involved in any of the Cleveland or New York crimes, McGoldrick said.

ALLEGED COMPANION HELD

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Anthony Cirasole, 30, believed to be the man arrested by Philadelphia police early today under the name of Anthony Girasole, is wanted in Cleveland on a warrant charging him with the holdup murder of Edward J. Erdody, 60-year-old furrier.

Cirasole was allegedly the companion of Joseph Dimarco, 24, of Brooklyn, N. Y., when Erdody was shot and fatally wounded in an attempted holdup of his Euclid avenue fur shop Wednesday morning.

Not That It Matters

Pity the Poor Communist! No One Believes Anything He Says Even If It's True

—By JANE WILLIAMS

WHEN Earl Browder, Communist leader, made his speech at Madison Square Garden after he had been convicted in federal court of passport fraud, he made statements that indicated he either was suffering from hallucinations or that politics of the past few years has made strange bedfellows.

Browder told his 20,000 listeners that the Communist party was a bloc of the Democratic party but was treated like poor relations; that they had supported President Roosevelt, had enabled Governor Lehman of New York to triumph over Thomas Dewey at the last gubernatorial election; that Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy had "had long intimate conferences with Communists as to party in conducting his campaign for governor," and that the Communists had given him every aid in his unsuccessful bid for the governorship of Michigan in 1938.

In digesting these amazing statements it should be remembered that the Communist party of Soviet Russia is the natural enemy of both Jews and Catholics and that Governor Lehman is Jewish and Frank Murphy Catholic.

Being a Communist has a lot of disadvantages—one of which is that no one believes anything one of them says even though it may be the gospel truth.

WE ARE delighted to learn that Mrs. Roosevelt, with her brilliant intellect and her unquestionable ability along so many lines has some of the feminine weaknesses that beset the rest of us.

The First Lady was indignant when a women's organization refused to permit a Negro to sing in their hall in Washington, D. C. So indignant that she publicly resigned from the organization. Yet one day this week she walked through a picket line in front of a Washington picture theater where "Abe Lincoln In Illinois" was being shown. The picket line was placed there as a protest against the theater barring Negroes.

We suppose Mrs. Roosevelt's illogical attitude puts her in the "mere woman" class with the rest of us.

DENVER women have reported to police a purse snatcher who takes them gently but firmly in his arms and murmurs in their ears that he wants their pocketbooks.

What a thrilling way to lose your lunch money! Wonder if he intends to work his way East?

IT PROBABLY was the influence of all this talk about who is going to run for the 17th district Congressional nomination, and who isn't—and who ISN'T running?—that the Optimist club bulletin got all balled up this week.

The bulletin announced that Dr. K. G. Lind of Wittenberg college would talk on "Ballotry" and would tell some humorous stories of how early ballots were cast. Imagine the confusion of members when Dr. Lind talked on "Balladry" and told of how the early ballads were written!

The ballad, Lind said, was full of action, and neither too long nor too short. The ballot for the special primaries is different in that it is full of action but is much too long.

GUESTS from Minnesota this week were taken over the city to show them the points of interest and the town's beautiful homes, which we have always maintained were more pretentious, and more of them, than any other city the size of Mansfield in America.

They marveled at the many estates on the edge of the city and the fortunes they represent. Then we drove out the Olivesburg road and the big gray castle, with its turrets and towers, which is the front of the Reformatory, loomed before us.

"Great Scott!" one of the guests exclaimed, "that's the biggest house we've seen yet. I should think the members of the family would get lost in there."

And we explained that the members were all numbered—so they wouldn't get lost.

KATHERINE F. LENROOT, chief of the federal children's bureau, has frowned on the practice of boys going barefoot and has ordered a picture of three barefoot boys taken off the cover of a bureau publication.

We have long suspected that Miss Lenroot didn't have a normal childhood, and now we know it. Small boys have certain inalienable rights, among them carrying a sling shot, going barefoot in the spring and flying a kite.

And if we know small boys, Miss Lenroot can go fly a kite, too.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Can Green Back Up His Indorsement of Request For Pardon For Scalese?

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I understand that Will Green, the president of the American Federation of Labor, and Joseph Padway, its general counsel, have indorsed the application for a presidential pardon filed by George Scalese, the racketeer president of the Building Service Employes' International Union, who served four years in Atlanta for a job of white slavery, the details of which the trial judge described as nauseating.

Green advised the Department of Justice that Scalese's conduct as president of the union had been good, and Padway thought Scalese was a fine man who had lived an honorable life since his offense.

Waiving none of the objections to the presence of criminals in official positions in the labor movement, expressed by Senator Norris the other day, I suggest that this would be a good opportunity for Green and Padway to make character, as they say in the courtsmartial, for their friend, Mr. Scalese.

Perhaps they would be willing to give a public accounting of the manner in which this non-working member of a Brooklyn gang became international president of an A. F. of L. union.

When did George Scalese ever work as a janitor, window washer, porter or elevator operator; by what grades did he rise to the office of international president; what have the New York police and District Attorney Tom Dewey's investigators to say as to his activities in the last 10 or 15 years; who are his associates, and what has been done with the money collected from the rank-and-file workers in the form of initiation fees, dues and assessments?

What other unions have been organized by Scalese and his colleagues in Brooklyn and Chicago; how much money have they collected; what have they done with it, and does the American Federation of Labor want to take responsibility for the sort of union which Green, by his indorsement of Scalese, has described as "good."

I don't see how Green and Padway can decline to make a full presentation of all these matters to justify their approval of the request for a presidential pardon. It must be assumed that they have made a full investigation, because otherwise they would not be justified in giving their official indorsement.

If they can prove that Scalese has gone straight, that he rose to the presidency of the union by decent, democratic methods and that the funds of this and other unions in which he has been interested are all on hand or honestly accounted for, they have a good case for a pardon.

If an open, impartial investigation shows otherwise, however, Green and Padway will have to admit either that they knowingly indorsed a crook or that they knowingly gave their indorsement without making sufficient inquiry.

They should not object to a public hearing of all the facts, because they obviously must believe that such a hearing would vindicate their action and restore their man's citizenship and honor after long suspension.

NURSES CARE FOR 974 CASES

Annual Report Reveals That 4 on Staff Made 7,310 Visits Last Year.

The Mansfield Visiting Nurses cared for 974 cases in the city and immediate vicinity during the past year, according to the report given at the annual meeting of the board yesterday at the Women's Club.

The report was made by Miss Marjorie Palmer, supervisor of nurses, and showed that four nurses on the staff had made 7,310 visits during 1939, an average of 1,827 visits per nurse.

Miss Palmer said that 158 deliveries has been attended by the nurses which included three sets of twins, making the number of babies cared for 161. Of the entire number of deliveries in the city last year, only 36 were in homes without nursing care or hospitalization, as compared with 121 such cases in 1938.

Of the total number of visits made by the nurses 77.93 per cent were free. The Visiting Nurses is an agency of the Mansfield Community Fund and receives the greater part of its operating fund from it.

Dr. T. L. Bliss, Akron, who conducts the free tuberculosis clinics in Mansfield, was one of the speakers at the meeting. The Visiting Nurses sponsor the sale of Christmas Health Seals, which provides the money for the clinics. He told of the work accomplished in the county since the beginning of the clinic two years ago.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JANUARY 27, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—dented fenders are evidence of somebody's carelessness.

Mr. Farley says Mr. Roosevelt will not be a candidate for third term unless drafted in a national emergency—and Mr. Lewis doesn't notice even a slight draft.

It was Robert Quillen who thought to remark, in his timely way: "Americanism: Electing a man who isn't smart enough to succeed in private life; thinking him a great man because he holds such a high office."

Who'll Do The Big Jobs

AS ANOTHER class of young people has just been graduated from Mansfield Senior high school it is an interesting pastime to attempt to choose from among these boys and girls a few that give the impression that they are most likely to achieve beyond the ordinary in later years.

Experience has demonstrated that there are always plenty of people to do ordinary things—but there must also be some who can do better than ordinary, if progress is to be continued as the pace it has been going in the United States for the past century, and more particularly for the past decade.

A bit of information discloses that 43,089 patents were granted in this country last year, a number of which mark entirely new developments for industry.

A recent article in the Wall Street Journal summarizes some of the more important advances during the past ten years. These include the huge, 74-passenger transoceanic commercial travel planes, making regular flights back and forth across the seas.

Streamline, light-weight passenger trains—made of new steels and aluminum, powered by Diesel engines.

Giant atom-smashing machines, promising breath-taking possibilities in the fields of health and technology.

New synthetic textile fibers, like Nylon and Vinyon, which may replace silk as clothing material.

Synthetic vitamins and hormones of incalculable importance to human health.

Drugs like sulphanilamide which have helped man make history in his fight against disease.

A completely new oil-refining and oil-processing technique, which is transforming the oil industry in such a way that hundreds of millions of dollars will be spent on new plants during the next ten years.

It is not unreasonable to assume that Mansfield, Richland county—and neighboring counties—will continue to supply a fair percentage of present-day students who will qualify for some of the larger requirements of this new decade and several that follow—with the rules for success and failure continuing very much the same as in the past.

Dimes Against Paralysis

ONE of the fine things about the annual "March of Dimes" into the war chest of the health forces fighting infantile paralysis is the widespread participation of Americans. This year's fund-raising campaign has active committees in 2,600 different counties. The campaign will end with many celebrations throughout the country on January 30, President Roosevelt's birthday.

Funds raised by such campaigns in past years have resulted in the establishment of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, a central group which carries on research, fights epidemics, gives aid where needed and in other ways combats both the disease itself and its dangerous aftermath.

These funds have also furthered the building of numerous pools in which victims of "polio" may have the special treatment which has been found beneficial. They have been used to teach the public that there is hope and a chance to prevent the paralysis or greatly modify it.

Half the money raised in any community stays there for the benefit of local infantile paralysis patients. The other half goes to the foundation to enable it to continue and extend its work.

Spreading Conservation

A PAN AMERICAN conservation conference is planned for the coming spring in Washington, D.C. It will take up questions of bird and animal refuges and protection of native wild life generally.

Such conservation is now recognized in this country as important because some of our native wild life has already been destroyed. The passenger pigeon is one example. There are others. Many birds and animals have been threatened with extinction in recent years unless prompt measures are taken.

Many on the North American continent think of South America as being entirely free from this problem. There are still such vast wild areas there, many of them unexplored, that the birds and beasts seem safe for years to come. Our own experience, however, teaches that the best time to start conserving is before the damage is done. Perhaps Latin America can profit by our example.

Nazis Revive Slavery

HUMAN SLAVERY, supposed to be virtually banished from civilized countries, is reappearing in Europe and is found in a most astonishing form in Russia and Germany. It is most evident just now in the latter country.

Inhabitants of conquered areas are reduced to serfdom in large numbers as they were in the middle ages. This is done especially with the Jews, but it appears that other racial groups also in conquered Poland and Czechoslovakia are compelled to work for their conquerors without pay. They get in return merely enough elementary human requirements to keep them alive.

Games Supplant Feuds

REPORTS from Matewan county, West Virginia, are to the effect that the McCoys and Hatfields are shooting it out only on basketball courts these days. At present the score is in the favor of the McCoys, but there is no hard feeling apparent between the old feuding families. The Hatfields think they'll be making baskets on their own account any time now.

It would be interesting to know whether this amiable basketball rivalry follows a truce between the mountain clans or whether some one got the boys interested in the game first and they simply forget about their feud.

Down in Mississippi a Pecan Queen has been crowned—which may suggest later selection of a King of the Nuts.

Some people are always waiting around to be fooled.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The present crop of thieves on Broadway is not without at least one fellow with a gift of humor. This observation is based on a chance mishap that befell George Manvell on a recent visit to New York.

Mr. Manvell is an artist and a gag-man (Popeye) for the Fleischer studios in Miami. He is also something of a camera bug, and while in New York he took hundreds of feet of color film of the city's busy streets, of the ice-clogged waterfront, of the gardens and skyscrapers.

Then he parked his car on safe, well-bred Fifth avenue and went for an hour's stroll among the shops. When he got back his car was still there but his camera wasn't. It and all the costly film taken by Manvell had been stolen.

This made George Manvell pretty sick, but he oculdn't do anything about it except grouse a lot, finish out his stay, and go on sadly back to Miami.

I think it was about ten days after his return that a package from Rochester, N. Y., was dumped on his desk one morning. In it was all that color film of New York that had been stolen. Film already used was naturally useless to the thief. But instead of heaving it into the first vacant lot he had it developed and politely sent it on to Miami. As for Manvell, he can only shake his head, and wonder.

WHEN people come to New York on visits you think of them far removed from the chores of home life. Transients especially stay in hotels merely to sleep and change clothes. Their days are pretty well ordered

That is why the actress Bess Johnson can't get over a telephone call from one of her out of town friends. This friend had just checked into the Sherry Netherland, and when she called Bess was delighted to learn of her arrival.

"We must have lunch," cried Miss Johnson sociably.

"But I can't possibly get away for lunch," moaned her friend, "because I'm right in the middle of making some strawberry preserves."

CHINESE restaurants as a rule are successful because eating chop suey is a routine matter with a great many people, just as going to the movies once a week, or going to the barbershop for a haircut.

Some time ago a wandering yellow man decided to set up his restaurant in a downtown neighborhood, and after he was underway with his plans he discovered that the neighborhood was predominantly Jewish. He thought that over for awhile and ascertained that pastrami is a famous Jewish dish. Remembering also that people go to Chinese restaurants because they want to taste Chinese food, the canny proprietor went into a huddle with his number one kitchen boy and then came out with this triumph: "Pastrami—Chow Mein." At least once a week it is the featured item on the menu—and always it is plastered, in white paint, on the downstairs bulletin board which announces "Today's Special."

There is a restaurant in New York known as "The Splendid Hazard." . . . That is sort of tempting fate, if you ask this reporter.

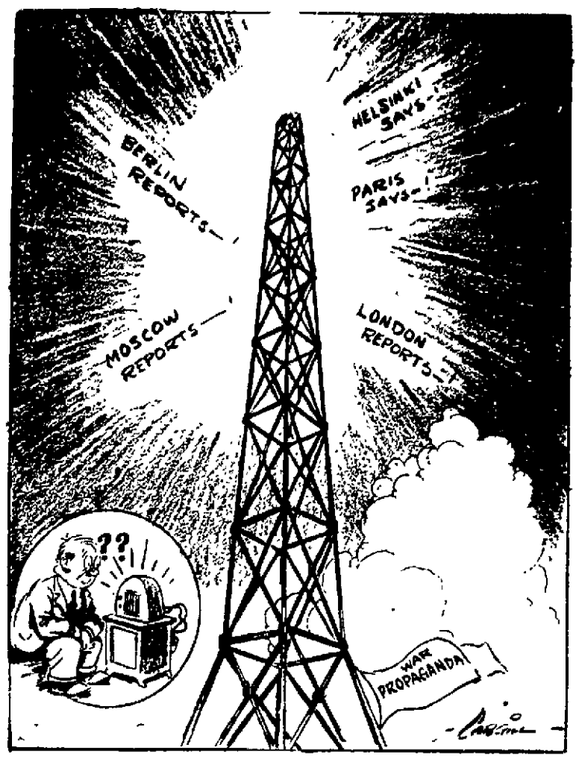
THE TOWER OF BABBLE



Charges Wagner Law Is Unfair

By GUS W. DYER,
Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

THE WAGNER LAW is little less than a legal monstrosity, tied on the Constitution by judicial technicalities. It is fundamentally antagonistic to the essential principles of constitutional industrial freedom. Hence the only standing it can have under the Constitution is purely and exclusively technical.

The administration of this law has been a disgrace to legal procedure. It is a New Deal measure, created to carry out a New Deal purpose. The administration of the law has been under New Deal direction, and no criticism has come from the administration with reference to any of the acts of the Labor Relations Board.

The revolutionary, socialist sit-down strike, promoted under the Wagner Law, was never criticized by the president, and the two New Deal members of the Supreme Court refused to join the majority of the court in condemning this outlaw mob movement to take by force property that belonged to others, and hold it, and use it in defiance of law and fundamental constitutional rights.

The evidence is strong that the prime purpose of the Wagner Law was to subvert constitutional industrial freedom, and set up in its place a system of labor domination and labor control of industry similar in nature and purpose to what is known in Europe as syndicalism.

Syndicalism is a revolutionary form of socialism. It means the domination and control of private industry by the workers, and in the end this would mean control of the government by powerful labor unions.

A movement in the open to overthrow constitutional freedom and put in its place a revolutionary type of socialism would not be popular. The rank and file of the American people believe in the Constitution, and at heart are loyal Americans. Hence radicals must pose as supporters of the Constitution and "dress up" their radical unconstitutional measures in constitutional language, and pin them on to some provision of the Constitution that is supposed to give them constitutional authority.

The extreme of absurdity and puerility, it would seem, was reached in hitching the Wagner Law to the provision of the Constitution that gives the federal government the power to regulate interstate commerce.

An employer is denied the constitutional right of free speech by the Wagner Law even to advise his employes with reference to organization, but radical communists may come in from an outside organization, stir up strife, and form any type of antagonistic organization they please.

The employer is denied the right of free speech in dealing with his employes on the ground that such exercise of his constitutional right might interfere in some mysterious way with interstate commerce. Under the profound esoteric decision of the Court, the harangues of radicals, communists and other enemies of the Constitution have no effect whatever on interstate commerce. But when a friendly employer, who gives his employes the best opportunity they can find to earn an honest living, advises his co-workers, he must be deprived of his constitutional rights in the interest of interstate transportation.

Manufacturers under the Wagner Law are denied the constitutional right to go on the open market and employ the workers of their choice, and American citizens are denied the inalienable right to sell their services to those who are anxious to buy.

The syndicalist Wagner Law creates a super-Supreme Court, presided over by radical labor leaders, who are given the authority to repudiate the constitutional rights of American citizens, when the exercise of such rights is displeasing to John L. Lewis and other labor leaders of his type.

This syndicalist monstrosity, masquerading as a law of constitutional authority, should be repealed as speedily as possible.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE absolutely no patience with people who make martyrdoms of love. Or who allow it to wreck their lives.

No matter what love does to you—. No matter how love hurts you—. No matter how much it costs—. Love is always the greatest adventure in life. And you're always the richer for it.

Of all the contemptible traitors, the most abominable to me is the human who is forever bewailing the bitter cost of love. The man or woman whose life has been "ruined" by a tragic love affair.

The mother who, having "given her life for her children," can find no meaning in existence when they have left the nest. Or even that seemingly most tragic figure of all—the one whose every hope has ended in a grave.

They are traitors all, I say! Spineless cowards who couldn't take it—or selfish egotists unfit for the great adventure of love. I despise them all. Give me an honest murderer or a lusty thief every time. They do far less harm to the cause of Righteousness and Beauty than these professional Torch Carriers.

Yes, I know, I'm "treading on sacred ground." Since time immemorial we've sanctified such grief—made heroes of the broken-hearted instead of bawling them out for the shameless slackers that they are!

And I know—none better—how easy it is to accept such sanctification; how easy it is to let the dark veil fall and turn one's back on life.

But in all our weakness there is nothing viler than that—nothing crueler or more cowardly than to deny this finest thing that comes to man's bitter lot; to spend one's days in wailing that "love doesn't pay." For that is exactly what we mean when we abandon ourselves to grief. That is exactly what we imply when we say we are broken-hearted.

Broken-hearted by love?

But what did we expect? Love, the most difficult of all our yearning dreams . . . the most audacious of all our adventures . . . the longest, loveliest reach the heart can make toward God! By what stupidity should we expect love to be easy? Or safe? Or even happy?

No—love is not safe. Love is not easy. Love is hard. Love is dangerous. Love is costly. Love is not for the timid . . . the niggardly. Love is not for those who cannot stand hurt and humiliation, terror or loss. Love is for the brave, the high-hearted, the generous. Love is for those who dare to live—DARE TO LIVE MORE ABUNDANTLY.

And only those who dare to love CAN live abundantly.

And if love breaks your heart—as it surely will, if it be real love—well, what of it?

Thank God that your heart CAN be broken! Thank God that it IS broken to new understanding, new tenderness, new courage! And do not stop loving because your heart has been broken once or twice. Love more. And more. And more! Give your heart to be broken again—and again! That it may hold more life!

Crows Deserve Better.

Ohio hunters who imitate soldiers on the Russo-Finnish border and stalk crow roosts over snow-covered ground while dressed in white may be doing themselves, and their farmer friends, unwitting injury in slaughtering these birds.

Painstaking nation-wide investigation of the crow's feeding habits, conducted by the United States Biological Survey, appears to indicate that the crow is much maligned -- perhaps, indeed, by those who profit from promoting crow-shooting contests. Possibly concentration of crows in certain localities does result, at times, in depredation—and a grower has a right to defend his crops—but often at the very time the crow is accused of eating sprouting corn, he is devouring cut-worms. As a whole, Jim Crow is not as black as he is feathered. Christian Science Monitor.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

You Give Me Rest.

So many people hurry here
And hurry there, no peace
They find, and this is true, they bring
To others no release

From tension of the eyes but you
Who move so quietly
I love to be with you for you
Bring rest's own joy to me.

My heart at last can be at ease.
Lay down its weariness
Of stress and strain and hurried ways
Forget all this distress

Peace dwells within you this you know.
Its dignity, its art.
With you I find the boon I seek
Repose for my tired heart.

As Others See It

First Concern.

There's recurrent uneasiness over the country about the security of the Fourth of July. But let's concentrate now on Easter and try to save that first.—Kansas City Times.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The President of the United States of America and His Majesty the Emperor of Japan, being desirous to strengthen the relations of amity and good understanding which happily exist between the two nations . . . have resolved to conclude a treaty of commerce and navigation for that purpose.

LATELY, amity between the two nations has not existed so happily. Last July the U. S. gave Japan six months notice of termination of that 1911 treaty. This week it ran out. And Japan found herself on a most uncomfortable spot.

America: Damocles' Sword.

Japanese buy from this country almost as much as from all other nations combined. Moreover, they depend mainly on America for war essentials, and pay for them with such non-essentials as silk, chinaware, toys, textiles.

On Tuesday, three days before the treaty expired, the state department sidestepped a Nipponese request for a stop-gap trade arrangement, and bluntly informed the Japanese ambassador that future commercial relations would depend on Japan's attitude toward American privileges in China.

Though trade continues, it's now on a day-to-day basis. The thread that holds a sword over Japan's chief supply line could be snipped without notice.

The president could impose extra duties on all goods arriving in Japanese ships, or order a boycott of all imports from Japan. Or congress could place restrictions, or an outright embargo, on American exports to Japan.

"More than ever," an AP newsman reported from Tokyo, "Japanese leaders admit that Japan's economic life, and with it her political future, are at the mercy of changes across the Pacific."

Japan: Weary of War.

Even now, fed by U. S. supplies, Japan's war machine is running none too smoothly. After two and a half years of fighting, a million Japanese soldiers are wallowing in Chinese mud and ducking guerrilla bullets.

Last fall they were set back with heavy losses in an attempt to take Changsha. In December they managed to cut one of China's southern supply routes—but have two to go. To corner Chiang Kai-shek in his vast southwestern provinces, some strategists say, would take another million men.

Back home, cabinet after cabinet has fallen. Each new one faces the old problem of appeasing a war-weary public that wants hostilities ended first, Japan's "face" saved second. The price of rice has soared 35% in 18 months, clothing costs 280%. Paper is so scarce that buyers of cigarets must return the cartons.

China: 'Peace Pact'.

Nipponese leaders, hopeful of a face-saving peace soon, are putting their chips on ex-Chinese Premier Wang Ching-wei, now at outs with Chiang Kai-shek.

Picked by Tokyo to head a projected central regime for conquered parts of China, he lives in a Shanghai fortress guarded by Japanese machine-gunners.

Quotes

Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the Republican presodential nomination: "Seven years of maladministration in Washington have temporarily held back the growth of our country. But I deny that the American people are finished. America is at the morning of its destiny."

D. Frederick Burnett, New Jersey alcoholic beverage control commissioner: "Man likes to run with the herd . . . When he begins to drink alone, he becomes dangerous."

Norman Alexandroff, director of the National Artists' Foundation: "Public performances by child prodigies are certainly uncivilized. . . . For an audience to be asked to listen to such musical prattle is insulting."

At Home

Pension Problems.

Colorado promises its old folks pensions of $45 a month at 60. But a shortage of revenues earmarked for that purpose has cut actual payments to between $31 and $41. Now a judge has ruled pensions must be paid in full. Federal funds may help avert a crisis: Uncle Sam is matching state money 50-50 this year on pensions up to $40 for persons over 60. Before Jan. 1 his limit was $30.

Weather Report.

It got so cold this week that the weatherman at Evansville, Ind., froze his fingers. Houston, Tex., had its first snow in 10 years. Miami schools, which have no heating systems, were closed. Towns in upper New York were snowbound. Crop damage was reported as far south as the Rio Grande valley. Seven persons died of exposure, and traffic accidents and fires killed 150 more.

Labor Law.

The Wagner Act bars "discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment . . . to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization." The Supreme Court has ruled that to mean an employer can't fire a worker for belonging to a union. Does it also mean an employer can't refuse to hire a man on the grounds of union membership?

A federal court in New York held recently that the Wagner Act protects only employes, not applicants for jobs. NLRB disagrees. It asked a court in Boston this week to award "back pay" to two textile workers who complained they were turned down for jobs because they were union leaders.

Abroad

Poland's Oil.

Poland, in her last full year as a free nation, ranked 13th among the world's oil producers. That was high enough to make her output valuable in the eyes of petroleum-poor Germany. So outsiders were surprised when the Red-Nazi partition of Poland, last fall, gave the Polish oil fields to Russia.

From Rumania, just south of those fields, came reports this week that Germans now were policing railways and supervising oil production in Russia's half of Poland. As Berlin denied that story, the Allies warned King Carol that any attempt to make French and British companies in Rumania send oil to Germany might "lead to grave complications."

Councilor-In-Exile.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, known 'round the world for his flowing white mane and his virtuosity at the piano, temporarily shelved his musical career to lead Poland's struggle for independence during the World war and become her first premier in 1919. This week, his homeland again ruled by foreigners, the aging pianist-patriot—he's 79—was elected president of Poland's parliament-in-exile in France. "Poland is immortal," he declared. "We will deliver her from captivity. . . ."

People

Communist Convicted.

Before going to Europe in 1934, Earl Browder filled out a passport application on which were these lines:

My last passport was obtained from ——— on ——— and is submitted herewith for cancellation.

In the first of those blank spaces Browder wrote, "None." That was no lie, he told a federal jury in New York this week, since he was submitting no old passport for cancellation. His answer was false, the prosecutor argued, because he had previously obtained three passports in the names of three other fellows. The jury agreed, and the judge sentenced America's No. 1 Communist to four years in prison and fined him $2,000.

In Washington, next day, the House of Representatives voted the Dies Committee, which first unearthed Browder's use of false passports, another year to investigate un-Americanism.

Death Penalty.

Mary McElroy, 32, had dedicated her life to making "acceptable citizens" of the captured kidnapers from whom her father, then Kansas City's city manager, freed her seven years ago by paying $30,000 ransom. She took gifts to their cells, and appealed to the governor to save one from hanging. Her father, ousted from office, died last Summer. This week Miss McElroy shot herself in the head. Beside her body lay a note: "You have your death penalty now. . . ."

Sharp Appetite.

Iowans say Charley Sharp, 71, is showing his age. Last year, at Humboldt's Pancake Day festival, he downed 55 pancakes and 33 cups of coffee at one sitting. This week he won the contest again, but quit at 52 cakes and 29 coffees.

Science

Athlete's Heart.

Don Lash can run two miles in less than 10 minutes—about 16 seconds per 100 yards. Any healthy young fellow can hit that clip for a short distance, but most can't keep it up. Lash can, Indiana university physiologists have found, because he can feed his muscles oxygen 60% faster than the average non-athlete of his size.

An athlete's blood carries no more oxygen per pint than another's, according to tests reported this week, and his heart beats no faster. But it beats with a more powerful stroke, which makes his blood-stream flow swifter and thus complete the circuit from lungs to muscles more frequently.

Smart Seniors.

Some psychologists say people start downhill mentally in their 40's. But California university's Dr. Frank H. Freeman, who tests intelligence by radio, this week reported results "particularly encouraging to those who are nearing the twilight of their lives." Among 2,331 subjects, ages 10 to 90, he found those over 40 a bit brighter than those between 20 and 40. Men scored a fraction higher than women, too, but Dr. Freeman said that was "probably due to accident."

In Short

Killed: Four Army airmen, by a bomber crash in California.

Dropped: The demand for U. S. passports, from 168,016 in 1937 to 89,850 in 1939.

Wed: Jessie Simpson, New Jersey beauty contest winner who lost both legs in a railroad accident, to James Steward, advertising man.

Indicted: Joseph P. Ryan, president of A F L's International Longshoremen's Association, with his union, two locals and 10 other persons, on federal anti-trust charges.

Topped: The nation's list of highest paid corporation employes in 1938, by F. A. Countway, with $469,713 salary-bonus as president of Lever Brothers soap company.

Died: Major Gen. Omar Bundy, veteran of Indian and World wars; J. B. Lippincott, publisher; Charles H. Woodbury, painter; Edwin Carewe, movie director; James Burke, inventor; Guiseppe Motta, five times president of Switzerland.

Ohio Anecdotes

"Mother Bickerdyke.

"MOTHER BICKERDYKE," one of the most capable and beloved women to render medical aid to Civil war soldiers, was born near what is today Mount Vernon, in Knox county. Her maiden name was Mary Ann Ball, and she became the wife of Robert Bickerdyke, a mechanic, April 27, 1841.

Came the Civil war, and Mrs. Bickerdyke accepted the post for which she was best adapted—head of the regimental hospital at Cairo, Ill. She was in 19 hard-fought battles while pursuing her medical work.

She was described as "a large, heavy woman of 45 years, strong as a man; muscles of iron, nerves of steel; sensitive but self-reliant; kind and tender, seeking all others and nothing for herself," by Dr. Woodward, surgeon and intimate friend.

"Mother Bickerdyke" was particularly liked by Generals Sherman and Grant.

Members of Study Club Will View Masterpieces Feb. 9; Mrs. Ray Hammer Gives Paper on Monuments and Sculptures.

ARRANGEMENTS were completed yesterday by the 27 members of the Art Study club for the trip to the Cleveland Art Museum on Feb. 9. The members will view there the art treasures which appeared at the New York and San Francisco fairs last summer. Mrs. Theodore Frank, 33 Sycamore street, was hostess, and she was assisted by Mrs. J. Arthur Nichols and Miss Henrietta Frank.

Guests of the organization were Mrs. J. F. Biemer, Mrs. Floyd Davis and Mrs. C. D. Pitts. Mrs. Ray Hammer had the program of the day on "Monuments and Sculptures In Washington, D. C."

She told the members that there are 500 monuments and over 100 pieces of sculpture in the capital. Mrs. Hammer discussed Statuary hall telling that 29 states have already placed pieces representing two outstanding persons from the states. The latest piece to be placed is a bronze bust of the late Will Rogers, humorist, motion picture actor, and writer.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting with Mrs. Frank Leavitt and Mrs. Charles Chew presiding at the table. Because of the trip to Cleveland the Feb. 9 meeting has been cancelled, and the next regular meeting of the club will be Feb. 23 with Mrs. Hammer, Dickson parkway. Mrs. Harry Buchan will be the associate hostess, and Albert Perez is scheduled to give an illustrated talk on photography.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Irene Bloom, one of the oldest residents of Richland county, is celebrating her 90th birthday today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Izora Lautermilch, Augustine avenue.

Spinster Dinner Final Party for Vivian Miller

The final pre-nuptial party for Miss Vivian Miller, bride-elect of William Mosey, was a spinster dinner at the home of Mrs. John Courtney, 26 Highland avenue, yesterday evening. Miss Eleanor Clingan, Mrs James Courtney and Mrs. Norman E. Leonard were the associate hostesses for the affair.

The guests were seated at small candle lighted tables for dinner, and their places were marked with dainty nosegays of lilies-of-the-valley. After dinner the group hemmed towels for the honoree.

At the close of the evening, Miss Miller was taken into the dining room, where the table was set with a complete service of crystal, the shower gift from the guests. The hostesses presented her with a mirror in honor of the occasion.

Miss Miller and Mr. Mosey will be married at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow noon before the altar of the First Presbyterian church, Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the church, will officiate at the quiet ceremony.

Legion Auxiliary Members Lead Busy Lives

—News-Journal Photos.

Women belonging to the American Legion auxiliary lead very busy lives, for they are frequently on party committees, attending conventions or district meetings, or arranging programs at the Legion home. In addition they do considerable welfare work among the families of ex-service men. Auxiliary members figuring in the news recently are pictured here. Mrs. Robert W. Jones, auxiliary president, shown at the top right, and Mrs. Samuel Hawkins, top left, are the delegates for the annual mid-winter conference of auxiliary units which will be held in Columbus March 2. Mrs. Don Leuthner, ticket chairman, is pictured at the right. She is assisting Mrs Rolla Huffman, general chairman, with arrangements for the benefit card party which the auxiliary and the Bridge club are sponsoring Wednesday afternoon and evening at the American Legion home.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

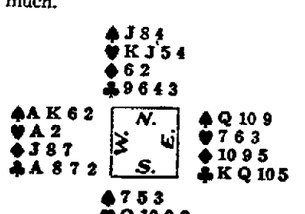
"The Authority on Authorities"

LOOK TO THE FUTURE

IT IS much more important to manage to tell your partner about the fact that you have two suits, than it is to indicate the exact length of them. Starting with a lower rank suit of five cards and later showing a higher one of four cards will aid him in getting an exact picture of your distribution. But suppose you begin with that idea, and later find you cannot afford to come in with the higher-ranking suit. You have then told him only half of your main story, because of your too extreme desire originally to tell him too much.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

The difference between starting right and wrong was clearly illustrated on this duplicate deal. At one table South opened expertly with 1-Heart. West bid 1-Spade, East 2-Clubs, South 2-Diamonds, West 3-Clubs and North 3-Hearts, which West doubled. It was set only one trick, for an East-West score of 100

East and West made 110—an important difference in duplicate—at the other table, where South started by bidding 1-Diamond because the suit was stronger and longer. West then bid 1-Spade, East 2-Clubs and South didn't care bid 2-Hearts, which would show much greater strength than he had because he would push his partner to the three level in order to show diamond preference. So he satisfied himself with 2-Diamonds. When West bid 3-Clubs, the bidding was over, for North couldn't come in without ever having heard about his partner's hearts. The 3-Club contract was made right on the nose, with the loss of three tricks in diamonds and one in hearts.

THEATERS

"Swanee River."

One of the American tragedies is the life of Stephen Foster, composer of so much of America's best loved music. The tragedy was physical as well as spiritual for Foster, who had been a welcome guest in the beautiful plantation home at Bardstown, Ky., which inspired his immortal "Old Kentucky Home," died in poverty in New York's Bowery. This story of the man who wrote "Swanee River" is brought to the screen in color, with Don Ameche playing Foster. Al Jolson and Andrea Leeds are in the supporting cast. The picture opens at the Madison today for four days.

"The Fighting 69th."

A fighting Irishman who still bears the title of Wild Bill Donovan to hundreds of veterans of the World war, a tragic poet-soldier who gave the world "Trees," a Catholic priest who was loved by hundreds of men, and a misfit who wanted to fight—but not in the war, are the principal characters whose fortunes are followed in this dramatic story of the 166th regiment of the famous Rainbow division, whose record of heroism is a part of our national tradition. George Brent plays Col. Wild Bill Donovan (who is still living). James Cagney is the misfit; Jeffery Lynn is seen as Joyce Kilmer, the poet; and Pat O'Brien plays Father Duffey, now dead, who was the regimental chaplin. This is the Ohio feature for four days, starting today.

"Stanley and Livingstone."

This tremendous saga of a man who gave his life to Africa and the newspaperman who staked his life on finding him, comes to the Ritz for three days, opening Sunday. The picture was voted one of the "ten best" films of the past year in Film Daily's poll. Spencer Tracy has the role of Henry M. Stanley, the American newspaper man whose career ranged from Welch coal mines to fighting in both the Union and Confederate armies, to missionary in Africa and later member of British parliament and the peerage. Sir Cedric Hardwicke is seen as Dr. Livingstone. Nancy Kelly and Richard Greene are in the cast. "Stop, Look and Love" will also be shown.

"Full Confession."

This is a screen drama as vital as a heart beat, with Victor McLaglen as the brutal murderer who, in his way, was something of a hero. It is a role similar to that of the unforgettable "Informer." McLaglen, as McGinnis, confesses to a priest that he murdered a policeman, for whose murder an innocent man is to be hanged, but he refuses to make the confession public. The priest's way of forcing him to, through pyschological pressure, makes a stirring story. Sally Eilers and Joseph Calleia are in the cast. "Blondie Brings Up Baby" is the second feature.

"Captain Fury."

"Captain Fury," starring Victor McLaglen, Brian Aherne, June Lang, Paul Lukas and Virginia Field, is one of the features which starts Sunday at the Majestic theater. This is a dramatization of roaring adventure and romance of the frontier days in Australia in the early 19th century. The second feature will be "My Son is Guilty," with Bruce Cabot and Jacqueline Wells in the leads. The film unreels against the colorful background of Hell's Kitchen, New York's slum section, and the beat of warm-hearted Patrolman Tim Kerry.

CIRCLE LUNCHEON.

Members of Circle One of the First Presbyterian church will be entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. C. C. Wagner, 450 Park avenue west, Thursday. Associate hostesses are Miss Minnie Bailey, Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, Mrs. John Burns, and Mrs. Theodore Frank. Reservations should be called to Mrs. Wagner before 6 p. m. Tuesday, the committee announced.

New capsule friends were drawn. Awards were presented to Mrs. F. B. Thompson and Mrs Raul Stahl. Luncheon was served by the hostess. The next regular meeting will be held Feb. 23 with Mrs. B. C. Mawhorr, 349 South Diamond street.

T. A. president, presented a coffee table to Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, and Mrs. William Smith, Mothers' club president, gave Mr. and Mrs. Swaidner a lamp.

W. W. Blauser, new principal at West Fifth, was introduced and spoke briefly. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, January 28.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very interesting and eventful one, showing unusual if not drastic activities, mainly in the realm of the mental or spiritual faculties and forces. Much is to be gained by dealing with fraternal, political or other large issues, using finesse and tact rather than direct methods in dealings.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a very lively, enterprising and successful year. Important issues are at stake in connection with large corporations or diplomatic, political and fraternal organizations. Legal and literary matters should flourish, with the mind pitched to highly-constructive lines of a scientific trend. Much may be accomplished by correspondence.

For Monday, January 29.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a most auspicious and productive state of affairs, with the ambitions under high stimuli for achievement. Intellectual or creative writing of fine order may prove lucrative and bring much gratification if care is taken to avert disputes, strife and useless argument or bickering.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which promotion, preferment and much of a substantial nature may be gained from those in high places. The bent may be in journalistic, literary or other creative lines. It would be wise to curb an argumentative and wrangling nature, even though the temperament may be kindly and peaceful. However, shun strife and litigation.

ASHLAND PAYS UP, THREAT OF LAW SUIT OUT

City Mails $10,907 Check to Firm Which Constructed New Storm Sewer.

ASHLAND — A check for $10,907.53 was mailed here by Lotta L. Westover, city finance director, to the Steinle-Wolfe Construction company of Fremont for a PWA storm sewer, and the city was relieved of the threat of suit.

The check was mailed after Mayor Howard S. Lutz received a letter from the firm stating that if the amount were not paid by Jan. 27, the city would be sued for the amount, interest and damages.

City council provided payment for the firm by transferring $10,900 from the water works construction fund into the sewer construction fund. The ordinance was passed as an emergency measure

HEAR OF 'TRUTH'

"Truth" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday

The Golden Text is "O Lord thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name, for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth" (Isaiah 25:1)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness" (II Timothy 3:16) platform for a thundering ovation.

Lewis introduced him as "an eminent statesman and the friend of the American laborer and the common man and woman."

After Wheeler had told the delegates that "there are no greater labor leaders in the United States than those who have led the miners to victory," the U. M. W. president smilingly pointed to the cheering miners and said to Wheeler:

"This attests the confidence we have in you as a statesman and an American."

Called Endorsement.

Some observers saw Wheeler's reception as a virtual endorsement although formal support probably will not be forthcoming immediately in deference to Lewis' expressed wish earlier that the convention refrain from backing anyone at this time. Lewis said previously that a Roosevelt renomination would result in his "ignominious defeat."

Wheeler in his speech also reached out to agriculture and industry, saying that leaders of those groups and of labor should be called by the national administration to a conference for solving what he termed "America's No. 1 problem"—unemployment.

"We in this country have pursued a policy of restricting production and maintaining prices to protect profits," Wheeler said. "We have been unable to make the tremendous scientific discoveries of our age serve the welfare of the people. We have managed our economy so that it either produces too much or too little.

"It is time that these economic absurdities must be solved in the interest of all the people.

"No one solution is available at the present time. . . . The government of the United States, therefore, must assume the leadership."

URGES GRADS TO SEEK 3 GOALS

Train to Make a Living, Live Creative Lives, Strive For Progress, Speaker Says.

living in a time when there is so much time. The big thing is tempo, keep up with the tempo. Things change in this world with rapidity, and you must be able to make the changes."

"Education is a long process. It begins at birth, continues through life, and ends at death. When you choose a vocation prepare for it and do your best with it. Keep up with the times. Discover new opportunities be creative and do the best you can where you are."

Train to live was the second point brought out by Dr. Stradley.

"Do not be a person always against things. Always be for things, for tolerance, for honesty, and for decency," he urged.

Urges Constant Progress.

"Prepare to live effectively in this world," Dr. Stradley said in discussing his third point, molding a world. "Never be satisfied with a degree of progress, but always want more progress. What we need more than anything else is to be prospective.

"All of you should realize the double satisfaction of life. America wants good and useful citizens. There are great problems facing you and great opportunities before you. The frontiers that face you are not land frontiers, but frontiers of the mind. Know but one direction, and that is forward," Dr. Stradley told the class in closing.

Dr. Stradley was introduced by W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, and presentation of the diplomas was made by William C. Mead, member of the board of education. The class was presented for graduation by Jesse Beer, high school principal.

All but one member of the class, John Link, attended the exercises and received their diplomas. Link is confined to his home with face lacerations, suffered Thursday night when the car he was driving, crashed into a tree on Vennum avenue as he attempted to avoid a collision with another machine.

The exercises opened with the class, attired in caps and gowns, marching into the auditorium. The program included a violin solo, "Ave Maria," by Bach-Gounod, played by Lois Robinson, accompanied by Janet Baughman, and singing of the class song, led by June Statler. Vivian Miller composed the song, and accompanied the class.

Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of First Presbyterian church, gave the invocation and benediction. The processional and recessional were played by the Senior high school orchestra, directed by S. K. Jorgensen.

CRASH KILLS REPORTER

CALLS $60,000 ISSUE ILLEGAL

State Examiner Hits Use of Bond Retirement Money For Relief, T. B. Bills.

funds will not leave the county tills.

The examiner pointed out in his report that the relief and T. B. notes for $60,000 were issued without an order from the common pleas court, for a one year maturity period rather than the required six months, and they were issued against tax revenue that was not available during the current fiscal year.

He cited the state law which says that such notes must be issued against revenues available within the year in which the loans were obtained.

The county officials explained that they used the bond retirement funds to pay the notes because the county is virtually out of debt and the funds were not needed to retire bonds. The loans were made on the advice of Prosecutor G. W. Marriott whose letter recommending the loans was included in the examiner's report.

Cites Good Faith.

Commissioners and the auditor acted in good faith in making the transactions, the examiner said, since they obtained the opinion from the prosecutor, their legal adviser, before obtaining the loans and using bond retirement money to pay them. Marriott told them issuing the notes would be a minor infraction of the law, but advised them to go ahead anyway, because of necessity.

"We do not believe, however, that a letter of this character (the prosecutor's which advised making the loans) can serve to relieve the county auditor and commissioners from legal responsibility for the issuance of illegal notes," the report stated.

More than 20 findings were returned in the commissioners' and auditor's departments, but most of them were for small amounts and represented minor errors in paying bills or failure to collect small fees.

Findings for $85.75 for illegal animal claim payments were returned against the commissioners, auditor and six farmers to whom the payments were made. The claimants failed to provide supporting affidavits that their sheep were killed by dogs, the examiner said. Farmers listed in the findings with the officials were Glen A. Hartman, Wade Stewart, J. F. Urich, Donald Vanasdale, W. A. Culler, and John Yentzer.

The report revealed that the City of Shelby was underpaid $262 in a tax settlement in April, 1938, and the auditor was instructed to pay the amount to the city. Wolfe said it would be added to the next personal tax settlement.

Commends Officials.

Wolfe, his chief deputy, Arthur Beck, and County Treasurer John E. Kolb were commended by the examiner for the accuracy and neatness of their records. He said Beck's records were "exceptionally complete and were of considerable assistance in the auditing of settlements. There were no findings in the treasurer's department.

Also commended for their efficient work were P. S. Carroll, clerk of the board of county commissioners, and County Dog Warden William Miller.

Minor findings were returned in the departments of the clerk of courts, recorder, sheriff, probate court, county engineer, and board of elections, but most of them have already been paid.

A finding for $57 was returned against J. F. Bumpus of Butler who, the examiner said, has served on the county health board illegally for the past two years because he was mayor of Butler when he was appointed. The finding represents expense money he has received since he was named to the health board by the district advisory council.

As mayor of the village of Butler, Bumpus was an ex-officio member of the advisory council and therefore was ineligible to serve on the health board which is appointed by the council, the attorney general ruled.

The examination on which the report was filed covers county transactions for the period from Dec. 10, 1937, to May 1, 1939. Examiner Wead and his assistant, A. J. Romer, worked on the books from last May until October.

GIRL AT THE FRONT + + + + +

By ROB EDEN

CHAPTER X.

If Claire hadn't been so stunned by the news Sanford had brought her—that Bill Cameron was dead—she undoubtedly would have screamed when she entered the dark room and felt a hand reach out and touch hers. As it was, a violent shudder went through her body a shudder of fright.

There was a slight click behind her and she knew the door had been closed, and then a low voice spoke, reassuringly.

"Don't be alarmed, Miss Dutton. There is no one here who will harm you."

"Why is it necessary to be in absolute darkness?" she demanded. "If there is no danger . . ."

"It is for your own protection. I don't want you to see my face—to be able to recognize me if you should see me again."

"But I do know who you are," she blurted out. "You're . . ."

"Stop!" the man's voice commanded sharply. "You may think you know who I am, but you are not sure. If any one should ever question you about 'Z. Y.' try to make you reveal my identity, you can truthfully say you don't know who I am. You never have seen my face."

"But I recognize your voice," she insisted.

"No you didn't," the man went on. "You've never heard my voice before. You've never seen me. You have no idea who I really am. You must believe what I am saying. It is for your own protection as well as mine. Now do you understand?"

* * *

"Yes." If Nigel Yorke expected to keep up this pretense even when they were alone, there was nothing she could do about it. "But why did you have me come here?"

"You want to find Bill Cameron, don't you?"

"I did. That's why I came over to Paris. That's why I've been trying my best to get some word about him ever since I returned. But now—now it's too late."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that he is dead. Wade Sanford just told me that a body, found in the Seine with Mr. Cameron's papers and ring and watch and his clothes, undoubtedly was his. He has identified the body and has arranged for burial."

"That is wrong, Miss Dutton. Absolutely wrong. I don't know anything about this body that was found, but I know it isn't Cameron's. He is very much alive, but whether he lives much longer may depend upon you."

"Bill is alive?" A shock like an electric current shot through the girl's body. Her mind, which had been dull, slow to grasp the meaning of even the most simple things since Sanford told her that Cameron was dead, suddenly was sharp, alert again. Hope surged up inside her again, and then faded. "Please—please, Mr. Yo—Z. Y., don't tell me that if it's not true. I can't stand another shock such as I've just had."

"I'm telling you the truth. I can tell you more—if you'll listen. Bill Cameron, until today, was still in France. He was smuggled across the frontier just after dusk and by now undoubtedly is in Berlin. He is a prisoner, but he is alive and well. We know that much."

"But why, if you knew where he was, didn't you do something?" Claire demanded. "Why wasn't he rescued?

"We didn't locate him and his captors—espionage agents—until too late. They had already slipped across the border with him when we picked up the trail."

"But why was he captured? What can any one hope to gain by that? Our country is neutral. He can't be held as a prisoner of war."

"They know that Cameron can tell them about the big offensive that is being planned for late this week. They know that he knows the plans decided upon at the last war conference between the Allied leaders. That's why he was kidnaped. At the same time, the secretary's pouch was planted with your baggage as a sort of afterthought. It would strike a severe blow to France to lose the St. Cyr, and it was hoped its confiscation might cause ill feeling between United States because [illegible] of American citizens on board were jeopardized or lost."

Claire's tears coursing down her cheeks were tears of happiness. Bill was alive! He was alive! And she had—she'd [illegible] him dead! True, he was in dangerous terrible danger, but he was alive. "Z. Y." had confirmed that.

"What—what can I do to help?" she asked eagerly. "I'll do anything, anything to help Bill—Mr. Cameron."

"I hoped you might volunteer," the voice said in the darkness. "We are desperately short of the right sort of people—people equipped by [illegible] and education and [illegible] to serve. Are you sure you have the nerve to go through with a very desperate venture—one that may cost you your life should you fail?"

"If it will help Mr. Cameron—yes. I'll dare anything."

"Remember, it will require quick-wittedness as much as courage. Do you think you can qualify."

"Yes," Claire said, simply, and she was certain in her own mind at that moment that there was no danger she wouldn't face, no terror she wouldn't experience to help the man she now knew she loved more than life itself.

"Good. Then listen closely. Word must be got to Cameron to pretend to break down and tell what he knows about the Allied war plans. He must tell the Germans the truth when they force him to talk—except in one particular. He must tell them the big drive is to start at 10 a. m. on the day set."

"But Mr. Cameron would never be tortured into revealing confidential information," Claire protested.

"He must tell. That's our new strategy. We'll let them know our plans but we'll set up our time 12 hours, and still catch them unprepared. Don't you see?"

The new plans were now clear to Claire, and she nodded in the dark. The simple change would spell the difference between victory and defeat.

"I understand," Claire said. "Please forgive me if I appear a bit stupid. But I have been through so much tonight."

"Two others have started already on the same mission you will undertake," the voice went on, ignoring her apologies. "They may not get through. Some one has to, so you have been chosen. If you'll do it."

"You mean go into Germany?"

"Yes. Do you want to back down?"

"No. No. I'll do it, if it's at all possible."

"Good. Then listen to me carefully. You will be flown to Berlin tonight. You are to be at the Chamonix Field at 5 o'clock. There you will inquire for Captain Le Feure. You will carry no baggage. You will leave your passport here, all means of identification. Is your clothing marked?"

* * *

Claire said that her more intimate clothing bore her name on tabs, sewed tightly for identification when it went to the laundry.

"Tear all the tabs out," the voice instructed. "Remove all labels of stores from any of your things you will wear."

"But what shall I do without a passport in case I am questioned?" the girl asked.

"You will be provided with one before you land in Germany—a false one, naturally. The description will fit you, however, and the photograph will resemble you closely enough to get by."

"You think of everything, don't you?" she commented, admiration in her voice.

"In our business, we have to think of everything—or we don't stay in it very long. You must remember that—every minute of the time you are in Germany. Leave absolutely nothing to chance—do nothing carelessly or on impulse. Everything you do must be carefully considered in advance with full regard for the consequences in case you are suddenly challenged or subjected to questioning. Understand?"

Claire said she did.

"When you reach Berlin, you are to go to the address on this paper I am giving you. It is on the Jaeger strasse. It is a little news depot and tobacco shop run by Frau Weber. You are to hand her this key when you are certain you are speaking to Frau Weber," Claire felt a cold key pressed into her hand, together with a small bit of paper. "From then on, you will act on your own initiative."

"Is that all 'Z. Y.?'" the girl asked.

"No one must know that you are leaving—not even Danny Brooks or Welles Sanford. I know that I can trust you Claire."

It was the first time the man had used her given name, and she reacted as though it had been a friendly pat on the cheek.

"That's all now, Miss Dutton," the voice went on, evenly. "You won't hear from me again. You are to leave here now and go to your own room."

"About the services for the man supposed to be Mr. Cameron—should I attend those this morning?" she said.

"Oh, yes, by all means. And be properly—er—grief-stricken." Claire felt the man move away from her, and a moment later heard the door click and saw a vague bluish haze which indicated that the way into the corridor was open.

"Good-by, Mr. Z. Y." she said.

"Good luck, Claire," the voice answered. She was in the hall and when she turned a moment later, the door of the room she had just left was closed.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I can see it!" he explained, half-closing his eyes, a mannerism familiar to me, and looking off into space. "The dear child must have a distinct flair for the dramatic to see that opportunity. Or did you think of it first?"

"Indeed no," I told him a bit explosively. "If the idea were mine, do you think I would have spoken to Olina about it before consulting you as to the innovation?"

He smiled indulgently at my peppery tone.

"Of course I know that," he said. "Forgive an idle question. It is only that I expect dramatic ideas from you, and frankly I'm surprised that Olina has such keen dramatic perceptions."

"I think she will go far," I said.

"She will indeed," he commented, and followed it up with a crisp question.

"Can you—will you write a few words of an interpolated role for her this morning?"

"I can, and I will," I told him, smiling, but his "thank you" was a perfunctory thing, and I saw that he was already "roaming far afield."

"There is no harp here, is there?" he asked next.

"No, nor I believe in a radius of thirty miles around—that is, one which we could obtain."

"That doesn't matter," he said impatiently. "If you will permit me the courtesy of a telephone, I can remedy that little matter almost immediately."

"How about this telephone in the hall? May I use it?"

"Of course," I answered, and he went immediately to it, and began calling numbers. When he finally turned away from the telephone he had arranged that three harps be delivered by fast truck to the farm house in as short a time as was consistent with safety.

"They'll be here inside of three hours," he said. "Then Olina can try them and see which one suits her. You say she can play a harp well?"

"She tells me she was offered a professional career," I said demurely.

"Youth is prone to exaggeration," he said sententiously. "I would rather have her mother's word on that. Which reminds me!" He struck his right fist into his left hand. "I haven't found out yet what her mother's reaction to this will be. I never can go against her wishes."

"I hardly think you'll have to," I said smiling, as Olina burst out of her mother's room and came flying down the hall.

"Maman consents!" she said in a sort of chant. "Maman consents!" Then she stopped short, looking from Mr. Veritzen's preoccupied face to mine, both of us busy with plans for the unexpected interpolation of the harp episode.

"Oh!" she queried sharply, "Haven't you told him yet, or does he disapprove?"

Mansfielders Reach Semi-Finals In Golden Gloves

By CHARLES MARTIN

FOR a number of years Mansfield fight trainers have been working diligently to produce amateur talent capable of holding their own in a major tournament—and today it looks like they had reached their goal.

There's a trio of Mansfield boxers in the annual Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament and they are back home today marking time to return to the Lake city to participate in the semi-finals of the classic Monday night.

Paul Carbetta, Beauford Glover and Al Sauers are the mittsters and the time Bus Doehla and Paul Delaney spent grooming the lads in the Friendly House gym this month was not wasted.

It marked the first time in Mansfield boxing circles that any Mansfield "simon pures" have a chance of copping an important crown.

The three settlement ringsters reached the semi-finals with stellar performances in second-round matches before 3,500 spectators in Cleveland's huge Public Auditorium last night.

Two of the boys, Glover and Sauers, had to dispose of two foes last night before they were set for the semi-finals, while Carbetta made the grade with one decisive triumph.

Sauers, 18-year-old Ontario high student, performing in his sixth fight, was the first Mansfielder to face a test last night.

He won his match, then Glover appeared on the program, and Carbetta followed. Sauers and Glover returned to the three-ring affair later in quarter-final bouts.

Sauers, an aggressive lad, who has proven a crowd pleaser with his furious body attacks, met John Saluppo, Papke A. C. middleweight, in a novice division battle and emerged with a well-earned decision.

The Ontario high basketballer began tossing leather from the initial bell and never let up. He had his rival hanging on the ropes several times.

Saluppo, a more experienced boxer, attempted to mix it up with Sauers in the final round and every time he opened up Al's great in-fighting made him give ground. The Mansfield boy won all three rounds.

Glover tackled one of the favorites in the lightweight class in the open division and the lacing he gave Berry Wright, Carter A. C., was a highlight of the evening's session.

Wright mixed it up freely in the opening stanza, but Glover's smashing right hook soon slowed him up. The round ended about even, but Beauford came tearing back and had Wright hanging on the ropes in the last frame.

That pile-driving right stopped Wright practically anytime he tried to get going.

Carbetta, who eliminated one of his toughest rivals Thursday night, fought Charley Jones, Ringside A. C. in a flyweight bout in the open division and floored him for a count of five in the second round before winning the decision.

Jones and Carbetta couldn't land any telling punches in the first heat, then Carbetta slipped through a right upper cut in the second period to take the advantage. Jones was on the defense most of the third round. Carbetta was leading the fight all the way.

Sauers came back to decision Joe Ciryak, Stellmack A. C. in his second match. He whipped over stinging rights and lefts that halted all of Ciryak's attacks. Ciryak was taller than Sauers, but the Ontario boy worked in nice to hand out a lot of body punishment.

Glover's second opponent was George Jones, Rudolph and Welch A. C., and he forced the fight. After a close opening round, Glover kept flicking a tantalizing left in Jones face and it bewildered him. Glover landed a flock of hard rights in the final round to emerge with the decision.

Tygers Upset Coach Hoffman's Former Charges, 37-18

Bellevue Fails o Offer Mansfield Cagers Trouble

Bengal Squad's Victory Brightens Hopes for District Championship.

BELLEVUE—"Oh, boy, did you see those Tygers play basketball night?" Coach Vern Hoffman kept repeating as he accepted the handshakes of his former neighbors in the steam-filled dressing room of the Mansfield high cagers here last night.

"They showed me more basketball than I've seen all season," he added.

Not accorded a chance to halt the host Bellevue club in the pregame reckoning, the Tygers never were in trouble as they outpointed the favored northwestern Ohio quintet, 37 to 18, to the surprise of a crowd which packed the gym to the rafters.

It was a particularly satisfying victory for Hoffman, too. Not because it establishes the Tygers as the club to fear in the coming district championship games, but due to the fact that Hoffman handled the reins of the Bellevue clubs for nine years prior to his going to Mansfield.

It was his "homecoming," and his charges certainly made it a pleasant one.

The Tygers were so superior last night that there was never any doubt as to the outcome after the opening minutes of play. The bengal squad jumped into a 16 to 6 lead in the first half and coasted the rest of the way.

While the natives here respect Hoffman's coaching ability, they did not expect to see Mansfield the victor. Bellevue had the advantage of playing on its own court, for one thing. Then there were the scores against common foes, and they, too, favored Bellevue.

Bellevue jumped into a 2 to 0 lead on a pair of free throws in the first period, and the only other points in the quarter were tallied by Russ Beer with a field goal near the end of the quarter.

Things started popping in the second stanza, however, Mansfield tallying 14 points to four for the hosts. Gene Miller's one-handed shots featured the Tygers' scoring spree in this frame.

Bellevue was a beaten ball club at the intermission, and the Tygers dominated play the remainder of the game, Hoffman using virtually every player on the bench before the end.

Beer was the big gun for he Tygers in the third frame. He contributed eight more points to the total to lengthen the lead to 17 points, the period ending with the score 28 to 11.

Bellevue tossed the ball wildly in the final period in an attempt to close the margin, but to no avail.

The Tygers, whose ball handling was brilliant, limited Bellevue to seven field goals, while they made 18 out of 51 shots for a fat .35.3 shooting percentage. Mansfield, however, made only one free throw in 11 attempts.

* * *

Miller and Beer led the Mansfield scoring with 12 and 10 points, respectively, and Jack Shiplet, who did a swell job handling the ball in back court with Don Rose, contributed seven.

The reserves made it a clean sweep for Mansfield high by taking the preliminary game 34 to 25. Hager tallied 10 points for the Junior Tygers.

Lucas Hands Bellville First Loss In 10 Games

Cubs Spring Major Upset of County League Season By Tripping Bluejays, 28-23.

BELLVILLE HIGH SCHOOL cagers were knocked from the state's list of undefeated quintets on the Lucas court last night as Coach Bob Sheidler's Cubs fashioned the major upset of the 1939-40 Richland county league season.

Taking the decision by a 28 to 23 count, Lucas halted the Bluejays' winning streak at nine games.

The victory boosted the Cubs into a tie for second place with the idle Madison Rams and protected their mathematical chance of winning the league gonfalon.

Lucas jumped into a 3 to 0 lead right off the bat and never trailed, although the Bluejays were within striking distance all during the game.

The Cubs leaped into an 8 to 7 lead in the opening period, led 13 to 10 at the half and 25 to 18 going into the final quarter.

One of the features of the game was the passing of the Cubs, who consistently drove under the basket to take their shots.

* * *

Bill Martin of Bellville, the league's leading scorer, obtained 11 points, but they were not enough to give his team the victory. Lawrence Franks also registered 11 to lead Lucas.

Lucas also won the preliminary game, the score being 18 to 17.

Whippets Extend Prexies

Marion Forced to Rally Late In Final Period to Trim Shelby, 34-30.

SHELBY — If the Marion Presidents had any idea that they would have an easy engagement on the Shelby court last night, they learned otherwise before the first half was completed.

The favored Marion team won by a 34 to 30 count, but it encountered anything but an easy foe. The Whippets forced the President's all the way.

Shelby trailed 9 to 6 in the first period, but came back to knot the count 12-all at the rest period. The third quarter ended with the score tied 21-all.

* * *

The Whippets jumped into the lead at the start of the final quarter, but were unable to hold their advantage. Marion coming back later to win.

Irvin Hollenbaugh was high for the Whippets with 10 points, while his teammate, Bob Lehman, one of the league's scoring leaders, was held to one field goal.

Marion annexed the victory in the prelim game by a 30 to 20 score.

Double-Header Tops Program

Two Bouts Headline Bill At Armory Monday.

Monday night's mat show at the Armory will be in the nature of a double-header main event, it was announced today by Tim Nolan, matchmaker for the Quality Club.

Nolan stated that it was erroneously announced from his office that the Walter Stratton-Walter Achiu match would be the main event and the return contest between the Masked Marvel and Charley Layden of Ft. Wayne, Ind., the semi-final. Such is not the case, according to Nolan.

Both of these will be two out of three falls matches with one hour time limits. The Marvel-Layden tilt had been previously announced as a 45-minute affair.

* * *

Most of the interest locally centers around the tilt between Layden and the masked matsman due to the heated battle which they waged here last Monday and which Layden lost when he mistakenly thought the referee had awarded him a fall and he carelessly turned his back upon his opponent whom he assumed was defeated.

A'S, REDS AND DODGERS LEAD BENNY M'COY RACE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—(UP)—Jockeying for the services of Benny McCoy, emancipated Detroit second baseman, entered the home stretch today with the Philadelphia Athletics, Cincinnati Reds, and Brooklyn Dodgers out in front and the finish less than 48 hours away.

When McCoy becomes eligible to sign a contract at 12:01 a. m. Monday, he will have before him offers of at least $40,000 for his signature and an additional $10,000 a year salary under a two-year contract.

Butler trailed 7 to 5 at the end of the opening quarter, but limited the visitors to only two points in the next frame while registering 13. Coach Bob Burgett's men held an 18 to 9 advantage going into the second half.

* * *

The Bulldogs were outscored in the final periods, but the lead obtained in the first half held out.

Grubb scored 11 points to pace the Bulldogs, and Wilson added 10 points to the total. Curry was high for the visitors with nine.

Lexington Wallops Ontario, 31 to 16.

LEXINGTON'S Minutemen kept their first division hopes alive with a 31 to 16 triumph over Ontario on the losers' court last night.

The Minutemen gave one of the finest defensive exhibitions of the season when they limited the Warriors to only one field goal in the last three periods. Elliott accounted for the only Ontario points in the final quarters just after the rest period.

Ontario added two free throws in the second quarter and did not tally a point in the final period.

Incidentally, Ontario held a 12 to 8 advantage at the end of the opening quarter, but trailed 17 to 14 at the intermission.

Shaffer, Lexington forward, tallied 18 points, enough to decision the Warriors. Wade contributed eight points as he and Shaffer accounted for all but five of the Lexington points.

Toledo Cagers Halt Bobcats

Ashland Outpoints Capital In Conference Tiff.

(By Associated Press)

The sizzling rockets of Toledo university carved the 15th and 16th notches in their victory belt today as they continued a torrid pace in the Ohio basketball race. They have lost only two games.

The rockets warmed up last night with Adrian college, using reserves to stop the Michigan five, 44 to 29. In the windup of a doubleheader, the Toledoans turned on all their power to smash down a strong Ohio university team, 63 to 50.

The Bobcats, pressing the victors for the state lead with nine victories in 11 starts, held the Rockets to a 29 to 28 half-time edge but couldn't keep up the pace in the late periods. Bob Gerber, Toledo center, flipped in 20 points to eclipse Frankie Baumholtz, Ohio's highscoring forward, who had 18.

Miami went into a percentage tie with the Rockets for the state lead by trouncing Cedarville, 58 to 27, for its eighth decision in nine contests. The Redskins, paced by Guard George Rung with 15 points, topped Cedarville at intermission, 34 to 10.

Ohio Northern downed Findlay, 44 to 36, and Ashland turned back Capital, 53 to 41, in Ohio conference tussles.

Jim Richcreek, Ashland guard, tossed in seven goals and four fouls to spark the Eagles, Capital, suffering its third setback in seven conference games, trailed at the half, 29 to 20.

SEMI-PRO BALL HOLDS ANSWER TO NEW PROBLEM

WICHITA, Kan. —(UP)— Semi-pro baseball holds the answer to the problem created for major league owners last week when High Commissioner K. M. Landis told them they would have to curtail their activities in the minor circuits, Raymond Dumont, president of the semi-pro congress, said today.

"Let the sand lots of America be the proving ground for the young players who will be forced out of their baseball jobs if a lot of the nation's smaller minor leagues fail to open this year," said Dumont.

BELIEVED SIGNED

CHICAGO—(INS)—The perennial squabble over Dizzy Dean's salary appeared to have come to an abrupt and unexpectedly early end today, with both the pitcher and his Chicago Cubs owners well satisfied. It was reported that Dean and Owner P. K. Wrigley had agreed over the telephone on a contract based on production.

ASHLAND PAYS UP, THREAT OF LAW SUIT OUT

City Mails $10,907 Check to Firm Which Constructed New Storm Sewer.

ASHLAND — A check for $10,907.53 was mailed here by Lotta L. Westover, city finance director, to the Steinle-Wolfe Construction company of Fremont for a PWA storm sewer, and the city was relieved of the threat of suit.

The check was mailed after Mayor Howard S. Lutz received a letter from the firm stating that if the amount were not paid by Jan. 27, the city would be sued for the amount, interest and damages.

City council provided payment for the firm by transferring $10,900 from the water works construction fund into the sewer construction fund. The ordinance was passed as an emergency measure.

HEAR OF 'TRUTH'

"Truth" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "O Lord thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth" (Isaiah 25:1).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness" (II Timothy 3:16).

platform for a thundering ovation.

Lewis introduced him as "an eminent statesman and the friend of the American laborer and the common man and woman."

After Wheeler had told the delegates that "there are no greater labor leaders in the United States than those who have led the miners to victory," the U. M. W. president smilingly pointed to the cheering miners and said to Wheeler:

"This attests the confidence we have in you as a statesman and an American."

Called Endorsement.

Some observers saw Wheeler's reception as a virtual endorsement although formal support probably will not be forthcoming immediately in deference to Lewis' expressed wish earlier that the convention refrain from backing anyone at this time. Lewis said previously that a Roosevelt renomination would result in his "ignominous defeat."

Wheeler in his speech also reached out to agriculture and industry, saying that leaders of those groups and of labor should be called by the national administration to a conference for solving what he termed "America's No. 1 problem"—unemployment.

"We in this country have pursued a policy of restricting production and maintaining prices to protect profits," Wheeler said. "We have been unable to make the tremendous scientific discoveries of our age serve the welfare of the people. We have managed our economy so that it either produces too much or too little.

"It is time that these economic absurdities must be solved in the interest of all the people.

"No one solution is available at the present time. . . . The government of the United States, therefore, must assume the leadership."

URGES GRADS TO SEEK 3 GOALS

Train to Make a Living, Live Creative Lives, Strive For Progress, Speaker Says.

living in a time when there is so much time. The big thing is tempo, keep up with the tempo. Things change in this world with rapidity, and you must be able to make the changes."

"Education is a long process. It begins at birth, continues through life, and ends at death. When you choose a vocation, prepare for it and do your best with it. Keep up with the times. Discover new opportunities, be creative and do the best you can, where you are."

Train to live was the second point brought out by Dr. Stradley.

"Do not be a person always against things. Always be for things, for tolerance, for honesty, and for decency," he urged.

Urges Constant Progress.

"Prepare to live effectively in this world," Dr. Stradley said in discussing his third point, molding a world. "Never be satisfied with a degree of progress, but always want more progress. What we need more than anything else is to be prospective.

"All of you should realize the double satisfaction of life. America wants good and useful citizens. There are great problems facing you and great opportunities before you. The frontiers that face you are not land frontiers, but frontiers of the mind. Know but one direction, and that is forward," Dr. Stradley told the class in closing.

Dr. Stradley was introduced by W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, and presentation of the diplomas was made by William C. Mead, member of the board of education. The class was presented for graduation by Jesse Beer, high school principal.

All but one member of the class, John Link, attended the exercises and received their diplomas. Link is confined to his home with face lacerations, suffered Thursday night when the car he was driving, crashed into a tree on Vennum avenue as he attempted to avoid a collision with another machine.

The exercises opened with the class, attired in caps and gowns, marching into the auditorium. The program included a violin solo, "Ave Maria," by Bach-Gounod, played by Lois Robinson, accompanied by Janet Baughman, and singing of the class song, led by June Statler. Vivian Miller composed the song, and accompanied the class.

Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of First Presbyterian church, gave the invocation and benediction. The processional and recessional were played by the Senior high school orchestra, directed by S. K. Jorgensen.

CALLS $60,000 ISSUE ILLEGAL

State Examiner Hits Use of Bond Retirement Money For Relief, T. B. Bills.

funds will not leave the county tills.

The examiner pointed out in his report that the relief and T. B. notes for $60,000 were issued without an order from the common pleas court, for a one year maturity period rather than the required six months, and they were issued against tax revenue that was not available during the current fiscal year.

He cited the state law which says that such notes must be issued against revenues available within the year in which the loans were obtained.

The county officials explained that they used the bond retirement funds to pay the notes because the county is virtually out of debt and the funds were not needed to retire bonds. The loans were made on the advice of Prosecutor G. W. Marriott whose letter recommending the loans was included in the examiner's report.

Cites Good Faith.

Commissioners and the auditor acted in good faith in making the transactions, the examiner said, since they obtained the opinion from the prosecutor, their legal adviser, before obtaining the loans and using bond retirement money to pay them. Marriott told them issuing the notes would be a minor infraction of the law, but advised them to go ahead anyway, because of necessity.

"We do not believe, however, that a letter of this character (the prosecutor's which advised making the loans) can serve to relieve the county auditor and commissioners from legal responsibility for the issuance of illegal notes," the report stated.

More than 20 findings were returned in the commissioners' and auditor's departments, but most of them were for small amounts and represented minor errors in paying bills or failure to collect small fees.

Findings for $85.75 for illegal animal claim payments were returned against the commissioners, auditor and six farmers to whom the payments were made. The claimants failed to provide supporting affidavits that their sheep were killed by dogs, the examiner said. Farmers listed in the findings with the officials were Glen A. Hartman, Wade Stewart, J. F. Urich, Donald Vanasdale, W. A. Culler, and John Yentzer.

The report revealed that the City of Shelby was underpaid $262 in a tax settlement in April, 1938, and the auditor was instructed to pay the amount to the city. Wolfe said it would be added to the next personal tax settlement

Commends Officials.

Wolfe, his chief deputy, Arthur Beck, and County Treasurer John E. Kolb were commended by the examiner for the accuracy and neatness of their records. He said Beck's records were "exceptionally complete and were of considerable assistance in the auditing of settlements. There were no findings in the treasurer's department.

Also commended for their efficient work were P. S. Carroll, clerk of the board of county commissioners, and County Dog Warden William Miller.

Minor findings were returned in the departments of the clerk of courts, recorder, sheriff, probate court, county engineer, and board of elections, but most of them have already been paid.

A finding for $57 was returned against J. F. Bumpus of Butler who, the examiner said, has served on the county health board illegally for the past two years because he was mayor of Butler when he was appointed. The finding represents expense money he has received since he was named to the health board by the district advisory council.

As mayor of the village of Butler, Bumpus was an ex-officio member of the advisory council and therefore was ineligible to serve on the health board which is appointed by the council, the attorney general ruled.

The examination on which the report was filed covers county transactions for the period from Dec. 10, 1937, to May 1, 1939. Examiner Wead and his assistant, A. J. Romer, worked on the books from last May until October.

CHAPTER X.

If Claire hadn't been so stunned by the news Sanford had brought her—that Bill Cameron was dead—she undoubtedly would have screamed when she entered the dark room and felt a hand reach out and touch hers. As it was, a violent shudder went through her body a shudder of fright.

There was a slight click behind her and she knew the door had been closed, and then a low voice spoke, reassuringly.

"Don't be alarmed, Miss Dutton. There is no one here who will harm you."

"Why is it necessary to be in absolute darkness?" she demanded. "If there is no danger . . ."

"It is for your own protection. I don't want you to see my face—to be able to recognize me if you should see me again."

"But I do know who you are," she blurted out. "You're . . ."

"Stop!" the man's voice commanded, sharply. "You may think you know who I am, but you are not sure. If any one should ever question you about 'Z. Y.' try to make you reveal my identity, you can truthfully say you don't know who I am. You never have seen my face."

"But I recognize your voice," she insisted.

"No you didn't," the man went on. "You've never heard my voice before. You've never seen me. You have no idea who I really am. You must believe what I am saying. It is for your own protection, as well as mine. Now do you understand?"

* * *

"Yes." If Noel Yorke wanted to keep up this pretense, even when they were alone, there was nothing she could do about it. "But why did you have me come here?"

"You want to find Bill Cameron, don't you?"

"I did. That's why I came back to Paris. That's why I've been trying my best to get some hint about him ever since I returned. But now—now it's too late."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that he is dead. We've Sanford just told me that a body found in the Seine, with Mr. Cameron's papers and ring and watch and his clothes, undoubtedly was his. He has identified the body and has arranged for burial."

"That is wrong, Miss Dutton. Absolutely wrong. I don't know anything about this body that was found, but I know it isn't Cameron's. He is very much alive, but whether he lives much longer may depend upon you."

"Bill is alive?" A shock like an electric current shot through the girl's body. Her mind, which had been dull, slow to grasp the meaning of even the most simple things since Sanford told her that Cameron was dead, suddenly was sharp, alert again. Hope surged up inside her again, and then faded. "Please—please, Mr. Yo—Z. Y., don't tell me that if it's not true. I can't stand another shock such as I've just had."

"I'm telling you the truth. I can tell you more—if you'll listen. Bill Cameron, until today, was still in France. He was smuggled across the frontier just after dusk, and by now undoubtedly is in Berlin. He is a prisoner, but he is alive and well. We know that much."

"But why, if you knew where he was, didn't you do something?" Claire demanded. "Why wan't he rescued?"

"We didn't locate him and his captors—espionage agents—until too late. They had already slipped across the border with him when we picked up the trail."

"But why was he captured? What can any one hope to gain by that? Our country is neutral. He can't be held as a prisoner of war."

"They know that Cameron can tell them about the big offensive that is being planned for late this week. They know that he knows the plans decided upon at the last war conference between the Allied leaders. That's why he was kidnaped. At the same time, the incendiary powder was planted with your baggage as a sort of afterthought. It would strike a severe blow to France to lose the St. Cloix, and it was hoped its destruction might cause ill feeling in the United States because the lives of American citizens on board were jeopardized or lost."

Claire felt tears coursing down her cheeks, tears of happiness. Bill was alive. He was alive! And she had thought him dead! True, he was in danger, terrible danger, but he was alive. "Z. Y." had convinced her of that.

"What—what can I do to help?" she asked eagerly. "I'll do anything—anything to help Bill—Mr. Cameron."

"I hoped you might volunteer," the voice said in the darkness. "We are desperately short of the right sort of people—people equipped by intelligence and education and with the courage to serve. Are you sure you have the nerve to go through with a very desperate venture—one that may cost you your life should you fail?"

"If it will help Mr. Cameron—yes. I'll dare anything."

"Remember, it will require quick-wittedness as much as courage. Do you think you can qualify."

"Yes," Claire said, simply, and she was certain in her own mind at that moment that there was no danger she wouldn't face, no terror she wouldn't experience to help the man she now knew she loved more than life itself.

"Good. Then listen closely. Word must be got to Cameron to pretend to break down and tell what he knows about the Allied war plans. He must tell the Germans the truth when they force him to talk—except in one particular. He must tell them the big drive is to start at 10 a. m. on the day set."

"But Mr. Cameron would never be tortured into revealing confidential information," Claire protested.

"He must tell. That's our new strategy. We'll let them know our plans, but we'll set up our time 12 hours, and still catch them unprepared. Don't you see?"

* * *

The new plans were now clear to Claire, and she nodded in the dark. The simple change would spell the difference between victory and defeat.

"I understand," Claire said. "Please forgive me if I appear a bit stupid. But I have been through so much tonight."

"Two others have started already on the same mission you will undertake," the voice went on, ignoring her apologies. "They may not get through. Some one has to, so you have been chosen, if you'll do it."

"You mean, go into Germany?"

"Yes. Do you want to back down?"

"No. No, I'll do it, if it's at all possible."

"Good. Then listen to me carefully. You will be flown to Berlin tonight. You are to be at the Chamonix Field at 5 o'clock. There you will inquire for Captain Le Fevre. You will carry no baggage. You will leave your passport here—all means of identification. Is your clothing marked?"

* * *

Claire said that her more intimate clothing bore her name on tabs, sewed tightly for identification when it went to the laundry.

"Tear all the tabs out," the voice instructed. "Remove all labels of stores from any of your things you will wear."

"But what shall I do without a passport in case I am questioned?" the girl asked.

"You will be provided with one before you land in Germany—a false one, naturally. The description will fit you, however, and the photograph will resemble you closely enough to get by."

"You think of everything, don't you?" she commented, admiration in her voice.

"In our business, we have to think of everything—or we don't stay in it very long. You must remember that—every minute of the time you are in Germany. Leave absolutely nothing to chance—do nothing carelessly or on impulse. Everything you do must be carefully considered in advance with full regard for the consequences in case you are suddenly challenged or subjected to questioning. Understand?"

Claire said she did.

"When you reach Berlin, you are to go to the address on this paper I am giving you. It is on the Jaeger strasse. It is a little news depot and tobacco shop run by Frau Weber. You are to hand her this key when you are certain you are speaking to Frau Weber." Claire felt a cold key pressed into her hand, together with a small bit of paper. "From then on, you will act on your own initiative."

"Is that all 'Z. Y.'?" the girl asked.

"No one must know that you are leaving—not even Danny Brooks or Welles Sanford. I know that I can trust you, Claire."

It was the first time the man had used her given name, and she reacted as though it had been a friendly pat on the cheek.

"That's all now, Miss Dutton," the voice went on, evenly. "You won't hear from me again. You are to leave here now and go to your own room."

"About the services for the man supposed to be Mr. Cameron—should I attend those this morning?" she said.

"Oh, yes, by all means. And be properly — er — grief-stricken." Claire felt the man move away from her, and a moment later heard the door click and saw a vague blush haze which indicated that the way into the corridor was open.

"Good-bye, Mr. Z. Y." she said.

"Good luck, Claire," the voice answered. She was in the hall and when she turned a moment later, the door of the room she had just left was closed.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I can see it!" he explained, half-closing his eyes, a mannerism familiar to me, and looking off into space. "The dear child must have a distinct flair for the dramatic to see that opportunity. Or did you think of it first?"

"Indeed no," I told him a bit explosively. "If the idea were mine, do you think I would have spoken to Olina about it before consulting you as to the innovation?"

He smiled indulgently at my peppery tone.

"Of course I know that," he said. "Forgive an idle question. It is only that I expect dramatic ideas from you, and frankly I'm surprised that Olina has such keen dramatic perceptions."

"I think she will go far," I said.

"She will indeed," he commented, and followed it up with a crisp question.

"Can you—will you write a few words of an interpolated role for her this morning?"

"I can, and I will," I told him, smiling, but his "thank you" was a perfunctory thing, and I saw that he was already "roaming far afield."

"There is no harp here, is there?" he asked next.

"No, nor I believe in a radius of thirty miles around—that is, one which we could obtain."

"That doesn't matter," he said impatiently. "If you will permit me the courtesy of a telephone, I can remedy that little matter almost immediately."

"How about this telephone in the hall? May I use it?"

"Of course," I answered, and he went immediately to it, and began calling numbers. When he finally turned away from the telephone he had arranged that three harps be delivered by fast truck to the farm house in as short a time as was consistent with safety.

"They'll be here inside of three hours," he said. "Then Olina can try them and see which one suits her. You say she can play a harp well?"

"She tells me she was offered a professional career," I said demurely.

"Youth is prone to exaggeration," he said sententiously. "I would rather have her mother's word on that. Which reminds me!" He struck his right fist into his left hand. "I haven't found out yet what her mother's reaction to this will be. I never can go against her wishes."

"I hardly think you'll have to," I said smiling, as Olina burst out of her mother's room and came flying down the hall.

"Maman consents!" she said in a sort of chant. "Maman consents!" Then she stopped short, looking from Mr. Veritzen's preoccupied face to mine, both of us busy with plans for the unexpected interpolation of the harp episode.

"Oh!" she queried sharply. "Haven't you told him yet, or does he disapprove?"

Mansfielders Reach Semi-Finals In Golden Gloves

By CHARLES MARTIN

FOR a number of years Mansfield fight trainers have been working diligently to produce amateur talent capable of holding their own in a major tournament—and today it looks like they had reached their goal.

There's a trio of Mansfield boxers in the annual Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament and they are back home today marking time to return to the Lake city to participate in the semi-finals of the classic Monday night.

Paul Carbetta, Beauford Glover and Al Sauers are the mittsters and the time Bus Doehla and Paul Delaney spent grooming the lads in the Friendly House gym this month was not wasted.

It marked the first time in Mansfield boxing circles that any Mansfield "simon pures" have a chance of copping an important crown.

The three settlement ringsters reached the semi-finals with stellar performances in second-round matches before 3,500 spectators in Cleveland's huge Public Auditorium last night.

Two of the boys, Glover and Sauers, had to dispose of two foes last night before they were set for the semi-finals, while Carbetta made the grade with one decisive triumph.

Sauers, 18-year-old Ontario high student, performing in his sixth fight, was the first Mansfielder to face a test last night.

He won his match, then Glover appeared on the program, and Carbetta followed. Sauers and Glover returned to the three-ring affair later in quarter-final bouts.

Sauers, an aggressive lad, who has proven a crowd pleaser with his furious body attacks, met John Saluppo, Papke A. C. middleweight, in a novice division battle and emerged with a well-earned decision.

The Ontario high basketballer began tossing leather from the initial bell and never let up. He had his rival hanging on the ropes several times.

Saluppo, a more experienced boxer, attempted to mix it up with Sauers in the final round and every time he opened up Al's great in-fighting made him give ground. The Mansfield boy won all three rounds.

Glover tackled one of the favorites in the lightweight class in the open division and the lacing he gave Berry Wright, Carter A. C., was a highlight of the evening's session.

Wright mixed it up freely in the opening stanza, but Glover's smashing right hook soon slowed him up. The round ended about even, but Beauford came tearing back and had Wright hanging on the ropes in the last frame.

That pile-driving right stopped Wright practically anytime he tried to get going.

Carbetta, who eliminated one of his toughest rivals Thursday night, fought Charley Jones, Ringside A. C. in a flyweight bout in the open division and floored him for a count of five in the second round before winning the decision.

Jones and Carbetta couldn't land any telling punches in the first heat, then Carbetta slipped through a right upper cut in the second period to take the advantage. Jones was on the defense most of the third round. Carbetta was leading the fight all the way.

Sauers came back to decision Joe Ciryak, Stellmack A. C. in his second match. He whipped over stinging rights and lefts that halted all of Ciryak's attacks. Ciryak was taller than Sauers, but the Ontario boy worked in nice to hand out a lot of body punishment.

Glover's second opponent was George Jones, Rudolph and Welch A. C., and he forced the fight. After a close opening round, Glover kept flicking a tantalizing left in Jones face and it bewildered him. Glover landed a flock of hard rights in the final round to emerge with the decision.

Tygers Upset Coach Hoffman's Former Charges, 37-18

Bellevue Fails o Offer Mansfield Cagers Trouble

Bengal Squad's Victory Brightens Hopes for District Championship.

BELLEVUE—"Oh, boy, did you see those Tygers play basketball night?" Coach Vern Hoffman kept repeating as he accepted the handshakes of his former neighbors in the steam-filled dressing room of the Mansfield high cagers here last night.

"They showed me more basketball than I've seen all season," he added.

Not accorded a chance to halt the host Bellevue club in the pre-game reckoning, the Tygers never were in trouble as they outpointed the favored northwestern Ohio quintet, 37 to 18, to the surprise of a crowd which packed the gym to the rafters.

It was a particularly satisfying victory for Hoffman, too. Not because it establishes the Tygers as the club to fear in the coming district championship games, but due to the fact that Hoffman handled the reins of the Bellevue clubs for nine years prior to his going to Mansfield.

It was his "homecoming," and his charges certainly made it a pleasant one.

The Tygers were so superior last night that there was never any doubt as to the outcome after the opening minutes of play. The bengal squad jumped into a 16 to 6 lead in the first half and coasted the rest of the way.

While the natives here respect Hoffman's coaching ability, they did not expect to see Mansfield the victor. Bellevue had the advantage of playing on its own court, for one thing. Then there were the scores against common foes, and they, too, favored Bellevue.

Bellevue jumped into a 2 to 0 lead on a pair of free throws in the first period, and the only other points in the quarter were tallied by Russ Beer with a field goal near the end of the quarter.

Things started popping in the second stanza, however, Mansfield tallying 14 points to four for the hosts. Gene Miller's one-handed shots featured the Tygers' scoring spree in this frame.

Bellevue was a beaten ball club at the intermission, and the Tygers dominated play the remainder of the game, Hoffman using virtually every player on the bench before the end.

Beer was the big gun for he Tygers in the third frame. He contributed eight more points to the total to lengthen the lead to 17 points, the period ending with the score 28 to 11.

Bellevue tossed the ball wildly in the final period in an attempt to close the margin, but to no avail.

The Tygers, whose ball handling was brilliant, limited Bellevue to seven field goals, while they made 18 out of 51 shots for a fat .35.3 shooting percentage. Mansfield, however, made only one free throw in 11 attempts.

* * *

Miller and Beer led the Mansfield scoring with 12 and 10 points, respectively, and Jack Shiplet, who did a swell job handling the ball in back court with Don Rose, contributed seven.

The reserves made it a clean sweep for Mansfield high by taking the preliminary game 34 to 25. Hager tallied 10 points for the Junior Tygers.

Lucas Hands Bellville First Loss In 10 Games

Cubs Spring Major Upset of County League Season By Tripping Bluejays, 28-23.

BELLVILLE HIGH SCHOOL cagers were knocked from the state's list of undefeated quintets on the Lucas court last night as Coach Bob Sheidler's Cubs fashioned the major upset of the 1939-40 Richland county league season.

Taking the decision by a 28 to 23 count, Lucas halted the Bluejays' winning streak at nine games.

The victory boosted the Cubs into a tie for second place with the idle Madison Rams and protected their mathematical chance of winning the league gonfalon.

Lucas jumped into a 3 to 0 lead right off the bat and never trailed, although the Bluejays were within striking distance all during the game.

The Cubs leaped into an 8 to 7 lead in the opening period, led 13 to 10 at the half and 25 to 18 going into the final quarter.

One of the features of the game was the passing of the Cubs, who consistently drove under the basket to take their shots.

* * *

Bill Martin of Bellville, the league's leading scorer, obtained 11 points, but they were not enough to give his team the victory. Lawrence Franks also registered 11 to lead Lucas.

Lucas also won the preliminary game, the score being 18 to 17.

Whippets Extend Prexies

Marion Forced to Rally Late In Final Period to Trim Shelby, 34-30.

SHELBY — If the Marion Presidents had any idea that they would have an easy engagement on the Shelby court last night, they learned otherwise before the first half was completed.

The favored Marion team won by a 34 to 30 count, but it encountered anything but an easy foe. The Whippets forced the President's all the way.

Shelby trailed 9 to 6 in the first period, but came back to knot the count 12-all at the rest period. The third quarter ended with the score tied 21-all.

* * *

The Whippets jumped into the lead at the start of the final quarter, but were unable to hold their advantage. Marion coming back later to win.

Irvin Hollenbaugh was high for the Whippets with 10 points, while his team mate, Bob Lehman, one of the league's scoring leaders, was held to one field goal.

Marion annexed the victory in the prelim game by a 30 to 20 score.

Double-Header Tops Program

Two Bouts Headline Bill At Armory Monday.

Monday night's mat show at the Armory will be in the nature of a double-header main event, it was announced today by Tim Nolan, matchmaker for the Quality Club.

Nolan stated that it was erroneously announced from his office that the Walter Stratton-Walter Achiu match would be the main event and the return contest between the Masked Marvel and Charley Layden of Ft. Wayne, Ind., the semi-final. Such is not the case, according to Nolan.

Both of these will be two out of three falls matches with one hour time limits. The Marvel-Layden tilt had been previously announced as a 45-minute affair.

* * *

Most of the interest locally centers around the tilt between Layden and the masked matsman due to the heated battle which they waged here last Monday and which Layden lost when he mistakenly thought the referee had awarded him a fall and he carelessly turned his back upon his opponent whom he assumed was defeated.

A'S, REDS AND DODGERS LEAD BENNY M'COY RACE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—(UP)—Jockeying for the services of Benny McCoy, emancipated Detroit second baseman, entered the home stretch today with the Philadelphia Athletics, Cincinnati Reds, and Brooklyn Dodgers out in front and the finish less than 48 hours away.

When McCoy becomes eligible to sign a contract at 12:01 a. m. Monday, he will have before him offers of at least $40,000 for his signature and an additional $10,000 a year salary under a two-year contract.

GETS REFEREE'S VOTE

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Lloyd Pine, 136, of Barberton, got the short end of a split decision in his 10-round semi-final bout with Emil Joseph, 134, of Pittsburgh, last night. Pine received the referee's vote, but the judges voted for Joseph.

Butler Hangs Up Fifth Straight Win.

THE determined Butler high cagers registered their fifth straight triumph of the year by outpointing Union, '31 to 26, on the Butler court.

The Bulldogs, who have not been defeated since dropping their first four league contests, tallied 13 points in the second period to take a lead on which they were able to coast to victory.

* * *

Butler trailed 7 to 5 at the end of the opening quarter, but limited the visitors to only two points in the next frame while registering 13. Coach Bob Burgett's men held an 18 to 9 advantage going into the second half.

The Bulldogs were outscored in the final periods, but the lead obtained in the first half held out.

Grubb scored 11 points to pace the Bulldogs, and Wilson added 10 points to the total. Curry was high for the visitors with nine.

Lexington Wallops Ontario, 31 to 16.

LEXINGTON'S Minutemen kept their first division hopes alive with a 31 to 16 triumph over Ontario on the losers' court last night.

The Minutemen gave one of the finest defensive exhibitions of the season when they limited the Warriors to only one field goal in the last three periods. Elliott accounted for the only Ontario points in the final quarters just after the rest period.

* * *

Ontario added two free throws in the second quarter and did not tally a point in the final period.

Incidentally, Ontario held a 12 to 8 advantage at the end of the opening quarter, but trailed 17 to 14 at the intermission.

Shaffer, Lexington forward, tallied 18 points, enough to decision the Warriors. Wade contributed eight points as he and Shaffer accounted for all but five of the Lexington points.

Toledo Cagers Halt Bobcats

Ashland Outpoints Capital In Conference Tiff.

(By Associated Press)

The sizzling rockets of Toledo university carved the 15th and 16th notches in their victory belt today as they continued a torried pace in the Ohio basketball race. They have lost only two games.

The rockets warmed up last night with Adrian college, using reserves to stop the Michigan five, 44 to 29. In the windup of a doubleheader, the Toledoans turned on all their power to smash down a strong Ohio university team, 63 to 50.

* * *

The Bobcats, pressing the victors for the state lead with nine victories in 11 starts, held the Rockets to a 29 to 28 half-time edge but couldn't keep up the pace in the late periods. Bob Gerber, Toledo center, flipped in 20 points to eclipse Frankie Baumholtz, Ohio's highscoring forward, who had 18.

* * *

Miami went into a percentage tie with the Rockets for the state lead by trouncing Cedarville, 58 to 27, for its eighth decision in nine contests. The Redskins, paced by Guard George Rung with 15 points, topped Cedarville at intermission, 34 to 10.

Ohio Northern downed Findlay, 44 to 36, and Ashland turned back Capital, 53 to 41, in Ohio conference tussles.

Jim Richcreek, Ashland guard, tossed in seven goals and four fouls to spark the Eagles. Capital, suffering its third setback in seven conference games, trailed at the half, 29 to 20.

SEMI-PRO BALL HOLDS ANSWER TO NEW PROBLEM

WICHITA, Kan. —(UP)— Semi-pro baseball holds the answer to the problem created for major league owners last week when High Commissioner K. M. Landis told them they would have to curtail their activities in the minor circuits, Raymond Dumont, president of the semi-pro congress, said today.

"Let the sand lots of America be the proving ground for the young players who will be forced out of their baseball jobs if a lot of the nation's smaller minor leagues fail to open this year," said Dumont.

BELIEVED SIGNED

CHICAGO—(INS)—The perennial squabble over Dizzy Dean's salary appeared to have come to an abrupt and unexpectedly early end today, with both the pitcher and his Chicago Cubs owners well satisfied. It was reported that Dean and Owner P. K. Wrigley had agreed over the telephone on a contract based on production.

CRESTLINE — The Crestline high cagers protected their lead in the League of Six Nations by defeating Fostoria St. Wendlin, 42 to 27, in the "League night" program staged here last night. It was Crestline's eighth victory of the season and the fourth in league play.

Although forced to finish the game with only four men because of the four-personal rule, the Onondagos never were in danger after the intermission. They trailed 7 to 5 in the first period, but come back to hold a 20 to 11 lead at the half. Jim Stump tallied 16 points to lead the Crestline club.

In the other game, Tiffin Calvert won over St. Mary's of Marion, 24 to 23.
